John Troy Solves the Mystery

A Unique Criminal Case—The Convict Troy Confesses He Shot Angus McLeod—Gives a Thrilling Account of Causes Leading to His Confession—Had no Peace Day or Night in His Solitary Cell—The Tragedy was Burned into His Brain, and He Felt He was Losing His Reason—It was Through the Shrewdness and Tact of Warden Metcalfe that the Confession was made—Jury found Troy Guilty.

Never in the history of our usually quiet town, were our people, and in fact the residents of the entire district, so worked up as on the morning of the 12th Sept., 1893, when it was heralded to the world that Angus McLeod, one of our most respected and law abiding citizens, had been cruelly shot dead by a burglar, in his own house. Nothing at the time was left undone to secure the arrest of the fiends who perpetrated the foul deed. A number of arrests were made, and many theories were advanced as to who the culprit was, but in the end it was felt by everyone that there was not the slightest clue to the perpetrator of the dreadful deed to be found. Even Detective Rogers, who spent a great amount of time and energy in ferreting out the mystery, came to the conclusion, that "unless the perpetrator himself confessed, the secret would never be divulged."

This proved eminently true, and not until the prisoner Troy, a convict in Kingston Penitentiary, confessed to Warden Metcalfe, did the officers of justice or the public feel that the old adage would prove true, viz., "murder will out."

It is not necessary to review the facts of the murder, as our readers were made fully acquainted with them at the time, and they are also sufficiently rehearsed in Troy's two confessions, and in the evidence given by the witnesses at the present trial.

When Troy was brought into court on Tuesday, our first impression was that he was very similar in appearance to the general run of vagabond tramps that visit our town daily. He is small of stature, carried his head down, is beardless, boyish looking, and did not give the idea that he is a desperate character. However, his appearance in the witness box was quite changed. He gave his evidence in good English, in clear and concise language, and showed considerable shrewdness and intelligence in his replies to the Judge and the counsel. Many were heard to remark that his language was much above the ordinary. Troy is 32 years of age, and says he was born in Dublin, Ireland, and since he emigrated to Canada has led a wandering life. He was sent to Kingston penitentiary last year for shooting at a railway conductor at Cobourg, his term of sentence being twenty years.

The court room was packed. His Lordship kindly permitted the overcrowding, and never before was seen a more eager and anxious throng. The best of order was preserved, and even those in the corridors surrounding the court room were enabled to catch a good deal of what was going on.

The following jurors were empanelled: Theo. Jones, David Wees, John Bush, Richmond; M. C. Wagar, Camden; Alfred Sexsmith, Chas. H. Garrison, Fredericksburgh; Geo. Peters, A. H. Shaw, Jos. Youmans, Ernesttown; Jas. Wilson, Sheffield; Thos. Chalmers, Thos. N. Trumpour, Adolphustown. A few of those called were asked to "stand aside," but the reason was not apparent, unless it was that only young and middle aged jurymen were wanted.

REVIEW OF THE CASE.

In opening the case for the Crown, Mr. W. R. Riddell in a feeling and eloquent terms reviewed the circumstances of the murder. He said, away back four years ago, in September, the Town of Napanee, and, indeed, the whole Province, was shocked by the news that a prominent citizen of Napanee, a man without an enemy, had been shot down in cold blood upon his own hearthstone. Suspicion was directed against several people, and on one occasion a man had been tried before a magistrate for the murder and acquitted. Years passed by, and when it had come to be generally accepted that the McLeod murder would pass down as one of the mysterious murders which would not out, it was all cleared up, and in a very remarkable manner. Some months ago a convict, induced by conscience or other reasons, confessed to the Warden of the Kingston Penitentiary that it was he who shot Angus McLeod. The Attorney General was notified of the confession, and he delegated Detective Rogers to inquire into the matter. Rogers visited the penitentiary and had an interview with Troy. He warned the prisoner that any statement he made might be used against him, but, despite this, the prisoner repeated his story, and insisted that it was true. Mr. Riddell here detailed the purport of Troy's confession to Detective Rogers, and told of the chain of evidence the crown would bring to corroborate the story. He showed how Troy had told things that had never been made public, and could only be known to one who was in McLeod's house on the night of the murder. He was glad the prisoner pleaded not guilty, as it would give the jury a full opportunity to convict him if they found the evidence warranted it. "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man also shall his blood be shed," the law from time immemorial, but first they must ascertain the truth.

THE DETECTIVE'S STORY.

The first witness called for the prosecution was Detective Rogers, who testified that he had been detailed by the department to investigate the McLeod murder in September of 1893. He told of his visit to the scene of the tragedy, and how he had found a bullet in the wall of the house in which the body of the late Angus McLeod was, and how he had used his utmost endeavors to ferret out the murderer; but, up to the time he learned of Troy's confession from the Deputy Attorney-General on the 9th of February last, his efforts were unavailing. On receiving the statement of Troy's confession he went to the Kingston Penitentiary and saw the prisoner. Mr. McLeod, the Warden's Secretary, was present when he had the interview with Troy. He read the statement over to Troy which he had received from the Attorney-General's Department. Troy then requested that a convict named Hughes be sent for. Troy was anxious to know if he would have a trial, and Rogers informed him that possibly he might. The detective then warned him that any statement he made might be used against him in case of a trial. Hughes was brought in, and Troy told Hughes that he had done him a wrong and was going to make it right. Troy told the detective to take a pen and write down what he said. Troy then made a confession to the detective, which was signed by the prisoner, Mr. McLeod and the convict Hughes. The following is

TROY'S CONFESSION.

I, John F. Troy, make the following statement voluntarily to Inspector Rogers at the Kingston Penitentiary this 11th day of Feb., 1897, in the presence of W. J. McLeod, secretary, and John Hughes, a prisoner who is undergoing sentence, and was brought in at the request of John F. Troy.

Some days previous to the murder of Angus McLeod at Napanee, on the 13th Sept., 1893, we were in Port Hope, Hughes, Penn and myself; Penn and I met in Port Hope; we were drinking considerable there; Penn and myself intended going east; Hughes was going west; I met Hughes in a barn east of depot; Hughes gave me about $7.00 in silver; I knew Hughes before this time; we all met in the barn that night; next morning I went up town; I met them afterwards; I bought some groceries and some whiskey and took them to the grove; we cooked a meal; I induced the two boys who were with Hughes to go home; I gave them some money to go with; Hughes, Penn and myself and several citizens remained at the grove drinking all day; about dark we had a quarrel with Port Hope parties; I struck one over the head with a revolver and fired a shot at him as he was going away; Hughes, Penn and myself then went to Cobourg; Penn and I had revolvers; Hughes had none; Chief Rankin came down and searched us; our revolvers were hidden at the time; Rankin told us to get away from Cobourg; Hughes jumped on a train; Penn and I stayed behind to get the revolvers; we went to Trenton and met Hughes there; we all took the train at Trenton to go to Brockville and cross over into New York State; when we got to Belleville we got off; I was drunk and sleepy; They, Penn and Hughes, intended to go to Brockville, so I thought; I left on a later train about mid night and I got off that train in Napanee, a freight; there is a barn at left of track going east; I went over to that barn and met Hughes and Penn there; I proposed to Penn that we go down and prowl some of the houses in Napanee; he said he wanted one night's sleep in a year; I remained in the barn some time; they dropped off to sleep again and I went down town in Napanee; I entered McLeod's house; I drank some whiskey and eat some cake; I proceeded to pillage the house; I gained admittance by a window; I also opened the front door after I got in; there was a side door that entered in a passage way; I also opened that door; I opened a draw in a bureau or something like that in a bed room up stairs and got some one dollar bills which I tossed over to Penn; I had other money with me at the time and I put it together; there was a satchel or grip containing silver; I took some of the larger coins out of it; I left the small money in satchel, dimes, nickles and coppers; I found a box like a cash box, I lifted it and found something moved on the inside; I left this room to come and get something to pry the box open; I had a lamp with me I lit down stairs and took up; when I reached the landing at head of stairs I heard some voices in the house like a discussion; I heard a voice like a woman's say something to Charlie; previous to this I had heard the sound of a vehicle driving on the street; when I reached the landing where I had heard the voices I thought then that the people of the house had been aroused and were trying to prevent my escape from the house; I said, keep back there or I will shoot you, or something to that effect; at the same time I fired a shot; I could see no one but I fired in direction from which voices came; something was thrown or fired at me in return; I then fired another shot and escaped from the house; when I went to undo fastenings of front door I saw a hat rack; I am pretty positive it had a mirror in it; I took off my own hat, which was a brown fedora, no lining or no sweat band; I took my hat to mask my face before going up stairs; I picked up a kind of Tam O'shanter off the rack and put it on before going up stairs; I did this in order to disguise myself; I left my own old hat in the house when I went out: I forgot I had changed it; when I got out I reached the G. T. track and hid the revolver; I then went over to the barn where I had left Penn and Hughes asleep and wakened them; I told them I had been up prowling in the town, and that I had a shooting match; we then intended to go east on the passenger but Penn changed his mind and left on foot; Hughes and I remained until passenger pulled in and got on top of the passenger train; there we met two men riding between the baggage cars and it then occurred to me I had left my own hat behind; I reached down and tried to get hold of one of the other fellows' hats; I did not get it; we rode to Brockville; we remained around the yard while she was changing engines; when the train pulled out the other two men jumped aboard again; Hughes and I jumped on platform of last coach; I purchased a hat in Brockville; I left my tam in a barn at Brockville; Hughes and I drank considerable at the hotel across the street from depot, west; when west bound passenger reached Brockville there were two men on baggage car that I knew; accompanied by the two men and Hughes we proceeded up town where we drank in a saloon on Main street; I bought a newspaper from a boy who came into the saloon; I passed it to one of the three and we all left; we agreed to meet east of the depot; when I reached the place of meeting they had read the paper and I learned from them that McLeod was killed; we then all escaped to Montreal; I had breakfast with a priest at St. Henri; we then crossed over the Victoria bridge to St. Lambert and Longueil, remained there until some time in forenoon and we then proceeded to St. Hyacinthe; remained there a couple of days, then went to Sherbrooke and then to Lennoxville Jct.; we crossed into Vermont and wound up in White River Jct.; remained one day in Lebanon, N. H., cross the river; next day came back to White River Jct. and intended to take a train to Windsor, Vt.; when we boarded this train the crew tried to put us off but we swung under and when I got to Windsor Hughes was not there; I waited two days for him and never saw him again until I met him in Kingston penitentiary; The revolver I had, and used was a 38 calibre; I used a handkerchief when I was in McLeod's house to cover my face; when I went back to the barn where Penn and Hughes were I wrapped the gun or revolver up in the handkerchief I used at McLeod's and hid it; the reason I shot was to cover my retreat from the house and not be captured; the reason I opened the door before doing any work in the house was to make my escape easy; I drank the whiskey and eat some cake and cold meat; I got them out of a cupboard or sideboard; that part of my statement made to Warden Metcalf at the penitentiary, on the 3d Feb., 1897, in which I stated Hughes was present with me at McLeod's house is not correct; Hughes was not and knew nothing about the shooting until I told him.

The statement is absolutely true and correct and made by me of my own free will and accord.

Signed, Witness,
J. F. TROY. W. J. McLEOD.

Mr. W. J. McLeod, Secretary of the Warden of the penitentiary, who witnessed Troy's confession, was next called and corroborated the detective's evidence.

Mrs. Angus McLeod was next called. In answer to Mr. Riddell she said: Am widow of the late A. McLeod; was in the house at time of murder; Mr. McLeod died at 2.45 a.m.; I did not hear Mr. McLeod get up; I awoke and my husband came back into the bedroom in a very excited state; I was in bed; Mr. McLeod said "what shall I do?" There was a rumbling of a table outside a little way down the hall. Witness here related her account of the tragic event, which is familiar to most of our readers. Only remember two shots being fired; I saw the man go out of the front door, from the bay window upstairs; I think he went towards the Campbell House, east; I missed the tam o'shanter a few days after; there was a tin box upstairs in which were some old relics of my father; Mr. Rogers first told me of it; there was money taken from a satchel hanging on the secretary in the dining room; some small silver coins and coppers were left; the cash box was in the closet off the south bedroom. To Mr. Perry.—I could not identify the prisoner; the tones of the burglar's voice were harsh and loud.

Dr. R. A. Leonard said he took part in the postmortem examination; found death was caused by a bullet wound; the bullet taken from the body and one imbedded in the wall were alike.

R. Glynn, of Sarnia, said he was a dealer in guns, revolvers, etc.; he sold a revolver to prisoner Troy on 11th March, 1873; it had an independent pin fire; the bullet put in evidence was similar to a box of bullets he sold Troy. To Mr. Perry.—I think I saw Troy in Sarnia a few days before I sold him the revolver; I only sold one revolver on that day (11th March); prisoner has changed a little, but I recognize him; Troy had a $10 bill, and also bought a razor and strop, which took the whole amount of the bill.

TROY'S CONFESSION IN THE BOX.

The defence placed John F. Troy in the box. In the dock he had looked cast down and uninterested, but when he went into the box to give his evidence he showed marked intelligence and shrewdness. The method and character of his testimony caused a sensation. The prisoner spoke in a low hurried voice and at times it was extremely difficult to follow him. He said that in the main the confession given to Rogers was false. The story that he told verbally to the Warden of the penitentiary was in the main correct. He was severe in his reference to Detective Rogers, and said he declined to speak to him until Hughes was called. As soon as Hughes came into the room he (Troy) said "Ya-gum," the tramp dialect for "It's all right," and told Hughes that he had made a confession to the Warden implicating him, but that he would now make it right. He then made the statement taken down by Rogers. He ridiculed the assertion made by Rogers that he had said "take that pen and write." He said he did not deny his guilt, but Hughes and Penn were both with him at McLeod's house on the night of the murder. There were three shots fired. Troy fired the first shot, Penn the second and Troy the third. Hughes did not have a revolver. When he made the confession to Rogers the detective told him that he would intercede for him and see that he got better treatment in the penitentiary. When he entered the house he had no intention of committing murder or he would not have entered the house. He desired to tell the whole truth. He was standing there condemning himself and had no object in telling a lie. Both Penn and Hughes were in the house with him on the night of the murder. He believed the second shot, the one fired by Penn, was the shot that killed McLeod.

TORTURED BY ISOLATION.

In reply to a question by the Judge the prisoner said that it was the state of his health that induced him to make the confession. He grew quite animated and eloquent in describing the tortures he endured while in solitary confinement and had no work. He became harassed with awful doubts; his mind began to fail him; he was in darkness; night and day was the same to him; his very existence became dreadful; he had no hope of reward in making this confession. In reply to the Judge he said he did not know the consequence his confession might have. Trifles distracted him even now, his mind was in such a state on coming out of the isolation prison to attend this trial. Seeing and feeling the sunshine had brought on a desire to live. The prisoner in giving his testimony frequently made use of the expression "So help my God." He described at great length his movements and the movements of the other two men whom he implicated. He went into the most minute details, showing that the occurence was indelibly stamped on his memory. At McLeod's house they had opened a cupboard and found some whiskey and cake. They all partook of it, but the whiskey caused Hughes to retch. He warned Hughes against making a noise and made a movement with his fist, telling him to remember "they were not in the barn." Hughes in stepping back extinguished the lamp, and he believed that caused the confusion and made the shooting necessary. If the lamp had not gone out they would not have needed to have fired their revolvers. Neither he nor Penn aimed at McLeod. They simply fired at random to keep back pursuit. Penn was the first to make his escape from the house. He recounted their movements in the house and after they had effected their escape without faltering and without a moment's hesitation. He referred to the evidence given by Mr. Glynn, of Sarnia, from whom he had procured the revolver. He was surprised that a man would come all that way to commit perjury. He corrected Mr. Glynn as to what had taken place at his store in Sarnia when he procured the revolver. He believed Rogers had gone to Sarnia and told Glynn the circumstances and he had come here and testified in accordance. He said that it was all rot about him and Hughes and Penn separating at Cobourg; "so help my God" they all reached Napanee together, and were all in the one house together on the night of the murder. Penn escaped first from McLeod's house by the front door, and I followed; Hughes came from the side door. Penn separated from us and waited out of town. Hughes and I ran directly to the railway; in running up the road Hughes fell and cut his hand badly; I tore my handkerchief in two and bound up his hand. I wrapped the revolver in the other piece of the handkerchief and hid it in a culvert.

CONCLUSION OF THE CASE.

Neither the counsel for the Crown nor for the defence addressed the jury. Mr. Perry explained, however, that the prisoner had only allowed him to put in a plea of not guilty as regards certain statements made in the confession given to Rogers. Troy's chief anxiety was that the court should have a true account without misrepresentation the facts as they actually occured.

The learned Judge said this was the most extraordinary case that had ever come before him. He was not quite satisfied as to Troy's sanity. He would make a special report of the case to the Minister of Justice and the Attorney-General and have them pass upon it. The jury retired and in a short while returned with a verdict of guilty.

Mr. U. M. Wilson assisted Mr. Perry as counsel for the prisoner.

Troy was placed in solitary confinement in the penitentiary for striking a fellow convict with a sledge hammer. The prison authorities say Troy is one of the most treacherous and desperate inmates of the institution.

The convict Hughes is serving a term for burglary, and his time will expire in about five months.

Troy told Warden Metcalfe that Penn was the coward of the party, and after he had fired was so terrified that in his hurry out of the house he nearly knocked him (Troy) over. Troy says he so was angry that he followed him and fired at him in the street, intending to hit him. Troy says he has not seen Penn since, that he "took to his wheels and is going yet."

Hughes' Trial Laid Over.

Yesterday afternoon His Lordship announced that he would not take up the Hughes' case that evening, and it might not be gone on with at this court. We understand the prisoner wishes it to be laid over until next assizes, and says he will be able to prove an alibi—that he was not in town at the time of the murder.

Mining Around Tweed.

Tweed News.

Geo. Sedore, lot 18, con. 3, Kaladar, has a vein of gold bearing quartz running across his property.

David Smith, lot 9, con. 1, Kaladar, has both asbestos and actinolite on his property in large quantities.

The assay office is now nearing completion and by next week we hope to be able to announce its opening for a trust work.

Joseph James shipped a car of actinolite from here to Detroit this week and a sample order to Rochester for roofing purposes.

Word comes to the News from Flinton to the effect that the village is beginning to boom again and now has many prospectors visiting them. J. W. Aikenbrack amongst others is out with his little hammer.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

The Provincial elections took place in the Province of Quebec on Tuesday last and resulted in a great Liberal victory. The Flynn Government, which had a majority of about 20 in the last election, was so thoroughly defeated that they will likely resign almost at once and Mr. Marchand, the Liberal leader, will no doubt be called upon to form a new government. The Quebec legislature consists of 73 members; Tuesday's election resulted in a return of 54 Liberals and 19 Conservatives. The result was a great surprise to the whole Dominion and indicates that the Manitoba separate school question will not be heard of again even in Quebec.

Napanee Football Boys Defeated.

Last Friday our boys journeyed to Deseronto to play their first game in the Bay of Quinte League. They lined up about 5 o'clock. In about two minutes Mr. Fred. Scott, one of our backs, had the misfortune to break his leg. Deseronto team played good ball all through. It is likely they will be in the finals. With a little more practice our boys will likely pick up.

Navigation Notes.

The schr. Snowbird made her first appearance in the harbor this week for the season, bringing in a load of coal for J. R. Dafoe. The schr. Mary came in [illegible] for the Reindeer. The Lone Star with wood for S. J. Howard. The Rover with block wood for the Rathbun Co.

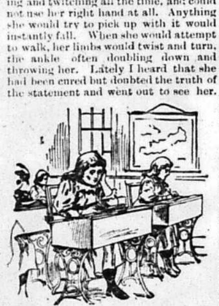
Hard Study in School.

BRINGS ON A SEVERE ATTACK OF ST. VITUS' DANCE.

A Young Girl's Life for a Time Made Miserable Could not use her Hands and Found it Difficult to Walk—Health Restored.

From the Napanee Express.

Nervousness is the frequent cause of much misery and suffering. One of the effects of this breaking up of the nerves, particularly among young people, being chorea or St. Vitus' dance. A correspondent tells of a young lady at Selby who was badly afflicted with this trouble. He says: —"I never saw anyone suffering so badly before from nervous disorder. She was violently jerking and twitching all the time, and could not use her right hand at all. Anything she would try to pick up with it would instantly fall. When she would attempt to walk, her limbs would twist and turn, the ankle often doubling down and throwing her. Lately I heard that she had been cured but doubted the truth of the statement and went out to see her.



The statement proved quite true, and believing that a recital of the facts of the case would be of advantage to some one who might be similarly suffering, I asked permisson to make them known, which was readily granted. The young lady is Miss H. M. Gonyou, a general favorite among her acquaintances, and it is thought that her trouble, as is not infrequently the case, was brought on by hard study in school." Miss Gonyou gave the following: —"All through the fall of 1894 I had been feeling unwell. I did not speak to anyone about it, for I was going to school and was afraid if I said anything about it to my parents they would keep me at home. I kept getting worse, and at last grew so nervous that I could not hold my pencil. My right side was affected most, though the trouble seemed to go through my whole system. In January I was so bad that I had to discontinue going to school, and I was constantly growing worse. I could not use my hands, because I would let everything drop, and frequently when I attempted to walk, I would fall. My brother had been ailing for a long time and was then using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and getting better, so I thought as they were helping him so much they would be a good medicine for me. Before the first box was done I was feeling much better, and after using the Pink Pills for about a month, my health was fully restored. It is now more than a year since I discontinued the use of the pills, and I have not had the slightest trace of the malady since. I am satisfied Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved me from a life of misery, and I would strongly recommend them for nervous troubles.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create new blood, build up the nerves, and thus drive disease from the system. In hundreds of cases they have cured after all other medicine had failed, thus establishing the claim that they are a marvel among the triumphs of modern medical science. The genuine Pink Pills are sold only in boxes, bearing the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Protect yourself from imposition by refusing any pill that does not bear the registered trade mark around the box.

MORVEN.

Here we are again, another week past and we still striving.

A very large crowd attended service on Sunday night at the Brick Church and were treated to a very fine sermon by our pastor, Rev. B. M. Pope.

Well what do you think we are to have next? Why a social on Friday night, 21st, at the White church. There will be pie, cake and coffee served in abundance and a good programme by the choir of same church. Admission only 15c. Proceeds for the organist, Miss E. Garrison. Don't miss it.

The majority of our men are attending court this week, and report it very interesting.

Mr. L. P. Gordanier intends having a fruit orchard, as he has planted about 1,000 trees.

Mr. Sam Brown, Picton, passed through here last week and took several fine groups.

Sunday callers: Mr. and Miss Blackadder, Front Bay; Messrs. Robert Meyers, James and Charlie Elliott, Misses Josey and Libbie Asselstine, of Hawley; Mr. Clark and Miss Galt, of Sillsville; Mr. H. Clark and Misses Mabel Hagerman and Luella Snider, of Fellows; Mr. Geo. Crabbe and wife, of Big Creek.

A Great Book Free.

When Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., published the first edition of his great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, he announced that after 680,000 copies had been sold at the regular price, $1 50 per copy, the profit on which would repay him for the great amount of labor and money expended in producing it, he would distribute the next half million free. As this number of copies has already been sold, he is now giving away, absolutely free, 500,000 copies of this most complete, interesting and valuable common sense medical work ever published—the recipient only being required to mail to him, at above address, 21 one cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, and the book will be sent post-paid. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. Contains 1008 pages, profusely illustrated. The free edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50 except only that the books are in strong manilla paper covers instead of cloth. Send now before all are given away.

Now that the boating season is rapidly approaching, we must expect to hear of the perennial idiot who insists on changing seats or rocking the boat, to the terror of weak-nerved women and the indignation of all rightly constituted sane men. If matters could be so arranged that the one who does the rocking could be drowned comfortably and nicely, there would not be so much reason to complain.—Exchange.

Williams Acquitted.

The Tamworth Man Charged with Manslaughter is set at Liberty—McCloskey of Deseronto, Awarded damages to the Extent of $275.

McCloskey vs. Stewart—Action for assault coming out of the seizure of the trotting horse St. John. The Sheriff of Hastings issued a writ of replevin to A. S. Valleau, bailiff at Deseronto, to take the horse, which was in Stewart's stable, and against which Stewart had a claim. The evidence showed that Stewart was willing to give up the horse, but asked that it might be left at his stable. McCloskey, the owner of the horse, objected to this, and ordered the officer to "do his duty,"—take the animal across the street to the O'Connor House. Stewart then ordered McCluskey off the premises, and it was claimed struck him repeatedly in the small of the back, and also cut his lip. Plaintiff showed by medical evidence from Kingston that he had been unable to work since, owing to his injuries. It was also shown by Vallean that the plaintiff walked peacefully out of the yard. Stewart showed in rebuttal, by a number of witnesses, that he had merely pushed him out of the yard with his hands; that as McCloskey was leaving the yard he turned sharply round and attempted to strike Stewart, when the latter slapped him with the back of his hand, cutting his lip The Judge charged strongly in favor of the plaintiff. After an absence of about an hour, the jury returned a verdict for McCloskey, recommending that he receive $275. J. L. Whiting, for plaintiff; E. G. Porter, for defendant.

On Tuesday morning court resumed, the case of Everett Williams, for manslaughter, in causing the death of one Frank Tyner, at Tamworth, in Dec., 1895, was taken up.

James Coughlin sworn.—Stated that he is fourteen years of age, and lived with Everett Williams; was at Williams' on the Xmas, of 1895, and also at John Tyner's, where Frank Tyner resided; Frank was no relation of John Tyner, but lived with him; the day before Xmas Williams told him what fun they could have with Frank, by giving him jalap; that it would physic him; Williams said he would give it to Coughlin to give him; it was to be given Xmas night; Williams said he would buy the whiskey on Xmas day at Dowling's in Tamworth; he got the jalap on Xmas eve, at Rose's in Tamworth; Xmas morning Williams said he would go to church at Tamworth, and when he (Coughlin) got through with his chores to come along to Tyner's and bring the jalap which he would find in one of Williams' coat pockets; that morning I waited at Dowling's hotel until Williams came from church; Williams then bought a bottle of whiskey and told me to take it to John Tyner's, and put it where Frank Tyner could get at it; Williams said Frank was always asking him for whiskey; there was a Xmas party at Tyner's; I got there about 2 o'clock in the afternoon; there were three wagon loads, and Williams' load was in the party; Williams again told me to put the jalap in the bottle and place it where Sam Kirk and Frank Tyner could get at it; I had both the whiskey and the jalap in my pocket; I put the medicine in the bottle about 9 o'clock in the evening, Frank and others had already drank the whiskey to within about two and a half inches of the bottom of the bottle, when I put the drug in; Sam Kirk saw what I was doing, and I told him what it was for; I then called in Frank Tyner; I then took a small swallow and handed it to Kirk, who handed it to Tyner; Frank then finished the bottle, and said it tasted bitter; before I put the drug in the bottle, Williams asked me if I had done so, and I told him my father would not let me do so; Williams said, wait until your father gets up to dance, and then make an excuse and go out and do it; saw Tyner about an hour after he took the drink, sitting on a couch beside the stove; told Williams as soon as I had given Tyner the drink; first heard that Frank was taken sick on New Year's Day; Mrs. Tyner came over to know what I had given Frank; I told her, condition powders; Williams told me not to let on anything about it, and I told her the first thing that came into my head; Williams told me this before I heard that Frank was sick; Williams got James Young to drive me in a cutter back to Ardoch; Tyner was at that time very sick and expected to die; I went back because Jane Kirk said if they did not get me there could be nothing more done about it; I was to stay at Ardoch until the trouble was over; I never denied to Williams that I had given Tyner the jalap; Williams and I had no quarrel about the matter; I stopped at Mr. Smith's at Ardoch, but do not know who selected my stopping place; Williams knew I was there; I stopped at Smith's about a month; Jimmy Young took back the horse and cutter; Thos. Keilar came after me first, but I was away at Mr. Smith's daughter's; James Young and Thos. Kellar brought me back from Ardoch in a rig that belonged to Everett Williams; they took me to my father's house, who kept me until the session of the High Court last year; at the court I was acquitted by the Grand Jury; the judge at that time directed that a true bill be brought in against Everett Williams; part of the time that I was in charge of my father I was in Prince Edward County.

To Mr. Deroche.—Williams spoke to me about the matter the day before Christmas eve; I did not suggest it to Williams; I had heard of a similar trick being played on a boy named Cavanaugh, but did not mention it to Williams; I thought it would be a good trick to play on Tyner; Sam Kirk also thought so; I have told that I got the whiskey at Samson Shields' and paid for it myself; told Phil Murphy that when he asked me what was in the bottle I said it was 7-year-old rye, and no common "rot gut"; I only told Mrs. Tyner that it was condition powder; John Tyner and Fred Simkins also asked me what I had given Frank; I told them that I did not give him anything; I heard Williams ask Rose how much was a dose the night before Christmas, and he replied, as much as he could place on a five cent piece. Williams' little girl had been sick some time before; don't know that he got the jalap for the child; don't remember when Williams and wife were going somewhere with the child, asking them to not forget the jalap for the child; don't remember asking Williams first if he had got the whiskey while in Dowling's; I only took one drink out of the bottle before I put the dose in the bottle; Frank Tyner did not complain of being sick when he came into the house; I do not know that Tyner had a drink from any other bottle that night; There were a number of bottles there; we stayed all night at John Tyners; next morning I heard that Frank Tyner was sick, and that some one had given him jalap; don't remember Mr. Williams going to Tamworth with us Christmas eve; I bought a new neck tie that night; Williams did not ask me to be sure and take the tie with me next morning.

Samuel Kirk.—Am fourteen years of age; am related to Williams' wife by marriage; remember when Tyner got the drink; was in the barn; Coughlin had the bottle; I know it contained whiskey, as I had two drinks; I saw Coughlin put something in the bottle when it was all used but about a couple of inches; Coughlin then gave it to Tyner, who drank it and said it tasted bitter; Frank asked Coughlin what he put into the whiskey, Coughlin said "nothing"; we three went to the house; Tyner complained of being sick during the evening; the papers in which the drug was wrapped were thrown on the barn floor; the drug was of a brown color; Coughlin said it was to physic Tyner; don't remember telling Williams that Tyner was sick. On being shown what he had sworn to at the inquest, he said he had told Williams Christmas night that Tyner was sick. I told Williams that Tyner was in bed sick; Williams did not say or do anything when I told him.

To Mr. Deroche.—I saw Coughlin put the jalap in the bottle; he did not say where he got it; he said it would physic Frank, that it was not poison; Tyner was very fond of whiskey; Williams did not seem to take any interest in Tyner when I told him he was sick; did not see Tyner after that night at the house; I told Tyner to put his finger down his throat to make him vomit.

Philip Murphy—Am 14 years of age; was at Tyner's Christmas night, 1895; did not see Frank Tyner get a drink; heard Coughlin call Tyner out of the cow stable, where I was; did not see Tyner drink; saw Tyner shortly afterwards; he was trying to vomit in the barn; Tyner and I got the papers off the barn floor and the bottle—a flat pint bottle, with some drops on the sides; there were two papers a white and a brown one; I thought the drugs in the bottle looked like condition powders; the same stuff as I thought was in the paper; it was a brown stuff like condition powders; Frank put the papers in his pocket; they were shown to several around the house; there was about a table teaspoonful of the powder left in the paper; Tyner vomited but I did not see him.

was at this stage brought into the court and placed into the witness box.

Jno Morrison—Was at Tyner's party, Christmas night; I saw the papers picked up by Tyner; can't say what was in the paper, if anything; Tyner gave the papers to me and asked me to tell him what had been in the papers; from the smell I came to the conclusion that it was condition powders; know nothing further about the case.

Mrs. Eleanor Tyner—Am wife of John Tyner; Frank Tyner lived at my house, was no relation to us; was left in the district by gypsies going through the neighborhood; heard his real name was Frank Golden; he was so long at our place that we called him Frank Tyner; Frank was sick that night, but next morning did not appear to be very sick; Frank never complained but did not look so well after that night; the last few years he was not very strong; he died some time in January, about three weeks after party; Frank said he "never felt right after he took the dose" can't say when he told me; his appetite was not very good afterwards, and he was not as strong.

To Mr. Deroche—Frank told me Jas. Coughlin gave him the dose; Coughlin told me that he had put in the whiskey a little parcel given him by Everett Williams; he said it was either condition powder or whatever Williams was feeding his horses; Frank Tyner was about 20 years of age and had lived with us about thirteen years; of late years he was not strong; he was an undersized lad.

Dr. C. Day Clarke—Was called to attend Frank Tyner; was consulted on the 9th January, and saw him on the 10th; he was then in a state of collapse and died within a few hours at John Tyner's home; I formed an opinion then largely from the history of the case; thought it was caused by some irritant; would call antimony and jalap each an irritant; antimony is only used for dumb animals; jalap is a very strong purgative; an overdose would cause inflammation; could do nothing when I was called; he was almost pulseless; I said he would die in a short time; Frank gave me the impression he thought he was going to die; he said he hoped Everitt Williams would suffer as much as he had before he died; that Williams had given him the dose; he said Williams had given him condition powders; he was suffering severe pain in the region over the stomach; showing signs of poison. The report given by Drs. Clark and Wilson, who made a postmortem was then read; the report in substance was that some irritant had been taken in the stomach, causing inflammation, which in connection with a weak system and chronic disease of the kidneys resulted in his death; I know that Williams did not give Tyner the dose, but that Coughlin had administered it; I attended Williams little girl that fall; she had fever and dysentery; called on her several times.

Dr. H. W. Wilson—Took part with Dr. Clark in the postmortem examination; I agree to what Dr. Clark has said.

To Mr. Deroche—Did not see Tyner alive; the boy was constitutionally weak, and would not have lived very long; attended Mr. Williams' child; she was ill with dysentery.

Dr. H. S. Northmore.—Practice at Bath; did not know Tyner; have seen postmortem report; from that report, I would agree with Drs. Clark and Wilson; I would think that the administering of the irritant was the immediate cause of Tyner's death.

To Mr. Deroche.—I think if a doctor had been called in at once, something might have been done for him; the state of deceased's kidneys had a good deal to do with the jalap killing him.

To the Judge.—I do not think that the state of his kidneys was the immediate cause of his death.

D. E. Rose—Am a druggist in Tamworth; I sell condition powders; they contain antimony (16 per ct.); sulphate of iron (vitrol, 12½ per ct.), both irritants.

FOR THE DEFENCE.

Jno. Tyner—Frank Tyner lived with me for some years; I remember the night of party; did not see Frank that night; he did the chores next day, but complained of headache; he worked three or four days after the party; he did not make any complaints to me; he quit working day before New Years; Everett Williams is no relative of mine; his wife (Williams) is a niece of Mrs. Tyner.

To Mr. Riddell—The boy was sick the day after Xmas, and was never the same boy afterwards.

Everett Williams—Am the accused; know Coughlin; he worked for me the winter of 1895-6; worked for me about four months; Coughlin told me that a neighbor of his, Cavanaugh, had been given a dose, and would it not be a great joke to take some of that up to Tyner's for Xmas, and give Tyner and some of the boys; I said yes, and laughed over it; he brought it up frequently and counted on the fun he would have; my little daughter was very sick, and she did not improve; at the suggestion of Mrs. Williams' mother I bought some jalap; Coughlin was with me, and heard me ask the proper amount to give the child; this was on Xmas eve; next morning we gave the child a dose of jalap; new Years morning I told the boy, Coughlin, if he would do the chores while they went to church he might go to Tamworth and afterwards to Tyner's; when I got to Tamworth I was sick and took a glass of brandy, and not getting relief I took a second glass; at this time Coughlin came into the hotel, and we all went to Tyner's; I gave Coughlin no jalap, but can't swear I did not give him a bottle of whiskey; I did not tell him where he would get the jalap; it was not mentioned that night; Frank Tyner took breakfast with us next morning; the Tyners took New Years dinner at my place and said nothing about Frank's illness; Mr. and Mrs. Kirk came to our place the day Frank was placed in the vault, and Coughlin denied to them that he had given Frank anything; they said Coughlin should be got out of the way, but I said I would do nothing to get rid of him; they then persuaded my wife to send the boy away, and Mrs. Williams and Coughlin went for her brother, James Young, who took Coughlin away.

To Mr. Riddell—Am about 33 years of age; I was at the inquest and was sworn; witness' evidence at the inquest was then read. The Crown Attorney then submitted the witness to a rigid examination.

[The Grand Jury here presented their report. His Lordship congratulated them on their admirable report, and spoke in strong terms of the scandal that old and indigent poor had no shelter in their declining years, but the county jail.]

Mary Ann Coughlin—Was at Tyner's party Xmas night; saw James Coughlin, her step-son, also Everett Williams; saw Williams speaking to James; he asked James if he had attended to the horses, as he had agreed, and young Coughlin said his father would not let him go out; he went out later.

To Mr. Riddell—Williams did not say, are you drunk, to James Coughlin, or why you are drunk; am mother of Mrs. Everett Williams; heard Frank Tyner had got a dose; the day of the funeral Mrs. Kirk said witness should send James away; I heard at the wake that James was blaming Williams.

Mrs. Everett Williams—Am wife of the prisoner; Drs. Wilson and Clark attended my little girl, who was very ill; my husband got jalap for the little one; James Coughlin was with him and they talked about it; the jalap was not taken to Tyner's; I heard Williams and James talking the same as previous witnesses had stated; my mother said James was blamed for giving Tyner a dose, and that he must be got out of the way, until his father, who was in the shanty, returned; my husband had nothing to do with sending the boy away, and would have nothing to do with it.

The jury, after being out about an hour, returned a unanimous verdict of "not guilty." His Lordship said the prisoner could congratulate himself on his escape, and could thank his wife and two little children for his acquittal. He lectured him strongly as to the heartlessness of playing these silly jokes, and cautioned him to take this as a warning for the future. The scene at the close was very affecting. Williams clasped his wife in his arms and both wept. The family was a happy one leaving the court house.

H. M. Deroche and F. Carscallen for the defence; W. R. Riddell for the crown.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

To His Lordship, Mr. Justice Robertson:

We, the Grand Jurors of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, at this Court of Assize for the County of Lennox and Addington, beg to report as follows:

First,—We thank your Lordship for the pains taken in your address to explain the changes which have been made in the laws relating to the Grand and Petit juries, and while we realize that the trend of public opinion and legislation is towards complete recognition of the principle that majorities must rule, we note with satisfaction that progress in this direction is being made cautiously. The educative value of such official reference to the laws of the land which you have been pleased to make can scarcely be overestimated.

Second,—We have visited the county jail and found everything in good order, evidencing the painstaking care with which the governor discharges the duties of his position. We think some improvements tending to a better sanitary condition of the water closets in the jail yard are very desirable, and trust it may only be necessary to draw the attention of the County Council to the matter in order to have the defect remedied. We found three prisoners confined in the jail in addition to those whose cases come up for hearing at this assize; one prisoner serving a sentence for assault, one a vagrant, and one an idiot. We think it a matter of regret that the latter is not removed to some more suitable place for the confinement of such unfortunates.

Third,—We note with regret the large number of crimes committed throughout the country by tramps, and we regret that this class of criminals appears to be on the increase, and all attempts to stamp out the nuisance which has become so prevalent and dangerous appear to have no effect. We would recommend that some more stringent measure be provided for this class of criminals. We believe that if the lash be freely applied to all tramps found carrying firearms or dangerous weapons, evidencing their readiness to commit crime, that the evil that threatens the safety of so many communities would be materially lessened.

Fourth,—Your Lordship's interesting reminiscences of sixty years ago, when in your hearing the proclamation of the ascension of Her Royal Highness, Princess Victoria, to the throne of her ancestors was publicly read, calls for devout thankfulness that in the British empire during the larger part of the nineteenth century, has exhibited to the world the beneficence of sovereign power, the growth of public freedom, and the strengthening of legal authority, developing side by side with ever increasing natural regard and esteem. We applaud your Lordship's expression of deep and abiding loyalty to the person, throne and dignity of our gracious sovereign the Queen. We join in the prayer that the Supreme Ruler may spare her yet many years to wield the sceptre of public dominion, whilst ennobling domestic virtues by example and precept.

We congratulate your Lordship upon your physical and mental strength, and trust that for many years you may continue to sit in a judicial capacity on the Ontario High Court Bench.

Signed on behalf of the Grand Jury.

W. F. HALL, Foreman.

Dated, Grand Jury Room, Napanee, 11th May, 1897.

GOOD COOKERY

Prune Sauce.—Wash, soak and boil the prunes in the usual manner. When tender take out the stones as clean as possible, crack them and extract the kernels. Throw these into boiling water for a minute and rub off the outer skin. Dip in cold water to perserve their color and add to the fruit. Sweeten the same with white sugar to taste, add a glass of port wine to a pound of fruit.

HAWLEY.

A large number intend going to Kingston on the 24th May from here.

Mr. S. McNeill, who had been keeping a debating school here all winter, is going to give a lecture in Bath on June 7th. Subject of lecture, "Orangeism."

Mr. Joseph Marsh traded horse, harness and buggy with Mr. McFarlane last week; they just changed rigs as they stood on the road. I wonder if they would trade their sweethearts off.

Messrs. Hilditch and McNeill have their fruit garden looking good and are looking forward for a big supply of berries.

Arbor day has past and gone and great credit is due to Mr. Anderson and his staff of children in the manner in which they cleaned the yard; they ploughed it and dragged it and filled all the holes with a scraper.

We are sorry to say Mrs. Milling is not improving as we would like to have her.

Mr. Stewart Craven is pressing his hay on his farm at the front.

The Epworth League is progressing here and we hope it will continue so in the future.

Mr. Editor, I won't say much this week as you will require a lot of space for the court news.

For Over Fifty Years

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for their children while teething. If disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. John McKnight's house is being moved this week to give place for the handsome brick structure about to be erected.

Glad to learn F. H. York is recovering though slowly.

T. Crawford is seriously ill; pneumonia.

J. Crawford is preparing to build as he has the stone already drawn.

Sorry to lose our old friends, Mrs. McIntyre and son, J. J.; they having taken up their abode for the summer at least, in Uncle Sam's dominions. Still we are not unreconcilable as another Mrs. McIntyre is expected in her place, and great preparations for building there also.

Our esteemed friend and genial neighbor, Hugh Killoran, entertained a large and choice circle of friends at his residence this week. There's where you get fine music. We recognize the musical wheel of last summer on our highway, Sunday not excepted.

Glad to know Mr. Wesley McLaughlin's only child has recovered as he is a bright little lad and general favorite.

We hear Arley York and family have been to Norway lake.

SANDHURST AND CONWAY.

I think Mr. Editor you had a description of Sandhurst some time ago, but not of Conway, and since the places have been joined together I will give a description of them. It is situated on the beautiful shores of the Bay of Quinte, about half way between Belleville and Kingston and noted for its favorite summer resort. The main street, running east and west, is Ontario st. Commencing at the western end of Ontario st. is the residence of A. Tavener, who is an extensive fruit raiser, having some fifty acres of orchard. Just across the road is the blacksmith shop of N. Peters. Then we come to Eleventh st. running north to H. Couher's, market gardener. Next is the Clark estate, which has also a large acreage of orchard. Next is the fine residence of H. VanDyke also Mrs. Simon Wright. Between them is the grist mill of H. Shering's, our general thresher. Then we pass by the post-office, kept by Mr. G. Ham, also the school house run under the skillful management of D. Stratton, of Parma. Then we come to Elm avenue, running north to Clark's Mills and south to Conway store and Quays. On the west side is the A. O. U. W. lodge room also W. H. Wright's fruit ranch. On the east side is the Methodist church and Conway's general store and elevators. The new store is completed and was opened on May 1st. Next is Walnut st. running south to Tarry Hall, and north to Mrs. Hill's dress making establishment. Then we pass by E. H. Phippen's cheese factory and stock farm and the Methodist parsonage, in which lives Rev. E. S. Shorey. Oak avenue, running south to the boat livery and barber shop, owned by W. Galloway. Then we come to Ontario st. Park, the famous picnic grounds. The manager, C. W. Wright, has engaged the services of Abraham Carter and son as care takers for the season of 1897. Next is Eighth st., running north to Sillsville, and south to the bathing grounds. On the north side on Ontario st. is the Presbyterian church. Opposite it is the Episcopalian church. Then we come to Wellington st., on which are situated the blacksmith, T. Gurren, and T. Mellow's residence, to the north, also, runs south to the sand pit and baseball grounds. Then we come to Albert st. running north to Mr. T. Ruttan's and to Mr. Felix Mellow's stock farm. Then we pass A. Downey's store house and docks, also Mr. John Young's residence, the famous duck hunter, and next is Mr. H. P. Claringhold, who is agent for the Connolly Bros., and always keeps on hand a full stock of ploughs and other implements, manufactured by them. Then we come to Seventeenth st. which runs north to Sharp's Corners. It also is the boundary line between this place and Pine Grove.

Miss Lawson, of Harrowsmith, is at present visiting at the parsonage, the guest of Miss Susy Shorey.

Mr. Oliver Robinson, of Front Road, spent Easter Sunday here visiting friends.

The rain on Sunday disappointed quite a number of our fair sex who expected to be able to show the new styles in dress, but as it was a few ventured out to their sorrow as Miss Hicks, of Cressy, and Miss Urquhart, of Hawley, dressmakers, have done this place up in good style.

Mr. James Hill went to Napanee on Sunday night.

Miss Higgins, of Kingston, has returned to her home at Conway to spend the summer.

Miss Grace Downey and Master Willie Wright, of the N. C. I., spent their Easter holidays at their respective homes.

I think it would be a good plan for the Sillsville correspondent to go and get his eyes tested by Smith or Chinneck and get a pair of glasses so they would be able to read what was printed and not guess at it.

Mr. Kerr, of Waupoose, spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. C. Wright.

Mr. D. McNabb has commenced drawing lumber for his new house to be erected this summer.

The ladies of this town have organized a base ball club and are practising two evenings each week.

Mrs. T. Mellow is confined to the house through illness.

Mr. Wm. Wright is busily engaged fixing up his place and has given his house a fresh coat of paint.

Will says his trips to Picton are not for nothing.

The Str. Alexandria made her first trip this week.

SHOW THEM UP TO THE PUBLIC.

As the public—particularly the ladies—are so often swindled by profit-loving merchants and dealers, it is well that people should have an example of what is done in the sale of certain package dyes for home dying.

The makers of common and adulterated package dyes sell their crude colors to the retail merchants at a cost of four cents per packet, and the public who buy these deception dyes are made to pay ten cents for them. A handsome profit indeed for Mr. Storekeeper! No wonder he uses every endeavor to sell and substitute his poor dyes for the famous and reliable Diamond Dyes.

The Diamond Dyes, that all live and honorable dealers in Canada handle and sell, cost a good deal more money, yet the public get them for ten cents, which only allows the dealer a fair profit.

But mark the difference, ladies! The cheap dyes are really worthless, and are made for the profit of the manufacturer and the dealer, while Diamond Dyes are made for the profit, pleasure and blessing of every home dyer.

A New York Letter.

NEW YORK, April 27th, 1897.

Dear Editor:—Tuesday, April 27th, was a great day in the history of New York. This day has seen the greatest celebration ever witnessed in the United States. To-day a great nation honors the memory of a great man, and over a million people gathered around the tomb of one to whom his countrymen pay willing homage. The body of General Ulysses Grant, fit bearer of the name so far renowned in ancient Grecian history, finds a resting place in a tomb well worthy of his noble name and never-dying fame. This costly marble monument stands in its dazzling magnificence in Riverside Park, New York City, on the bank of the mighty Hudson, whose mighty power and glorious scenery so captivated the heart of him, by whose last resting place it now flows into the mighty ocean. But to-day the Hudson is honored by the presence of a large number of war ships, American and foreign, which are gathered there in honor of the nation's hero. The grand immensity of the parade, naval and military, which this day witnesses, is too stupendous to be comprehended by mere statistics. The size of a parade of 60,000 men is beyond the power of imagination to correctly conceive. Some idea can be gained from the fact that it took six hours for it to pass a given point.

The weather was very favorable for the occasion, not being hot enough to be offensive, but a strong wind was blowing, filling the eyes of the spectators and soldiers with dust. Seats commanded a high price from one end of the city to the other in the line of march; even standing room was at a premium. A good soap box could be hired to stand on for 20c. or 25c, while seats ran anywhere from $1 to $10. It certainly was a big day in New York and one long to be remembered as an example of a nation's tribute to her noble dead.

As if by Magic.

This is always the case when Nerviline is applied to any kind of pain; it is sure to disappear as if by magic. Stronger, more penetrating, and quicker in action than any other remedy in the world, pain cannot stay where it is used. It is just the thing to have in the house to meet a sudden attack of illness.

A despatch says the Queen did a graceful thing last week, and delighted Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, by summoning their grand-daughter, Dorthy Drew, to Windsor Castle. The Prince and Princess of Wales will on Monday drive to Hawarden and lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. Each member of the Royal Family will plant a tree at Hawarden as a memorial of the occasion.

Get the Best.

The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time, on the contrary they want the best! Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil. 20b

Walter T. Ross, Picton, picked a lemon from his tree the other day, and made a glass of lemonade, the flavor of which he thought superior to that made from the imported article.

Mrs. Frank Oliver, a farmer's wife, dropped dead at Melita, Man., Sunday evening. Apoplexy was the cause of death.

R. Orlando Jolliffe, a Kingston boy, son of the Rev. T. W. Jolliffe, formerly of this city, has won the gold medal in classics at Toronto University.

Mrs. Oliver Cross, of Deseronto, died on Monday evening last. Deceased contracted a severe cold about two years ago, which finally developed into consumption. She was the daughter of Joseph Pilot, of Northport, and leaves a husband and two sons to mourn her loss.

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is without doubt the best medicine ever produced for dysentery, diarrhœa, cholera and all summer complaints, sea-sickness, etc. It promptly gives relief and never fails to effect a positive cure. Mothers should never be without a bottle when their children are teething.

Fever and Ague and Bilious Derangements are positively cured by the use of Parmelee's Pills. They not only cleanse the stomach and bowels from all bilious matter, but they open the excretory vessels, causing them to pour copious effusions from the blood into the bowels, after which the corrupted mass is thrown out by the natural passage of the body. They are used as a general family medicine with the best results.

A barn and drive house on the farm of the late David Culvert of Huntingdon was destroyed by fire Thursday night. Three horses were cremated. Loss, $900.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money.

Mrs. (Dr.) Farley, Belleville, was thrown from her bicycle and rendered unconscious for a time.

Always on Hand—Mr. Thomas H. Porter, Lower Ireland, P. Q., writes: "My son, 18 months old, had croup so bad that nothing gave him relief until a neighbor brought me some of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which I gave him, and in six hours he was cured. It is the best medicine I ever used, and I would not be without a bottle of it in my house."

At the Anglican Synod meeting in Winnipeg, Archbishop Machray stated that he would vote against prohibition in the plebiscite, believing that the Scriptures regard wine as a good gift of God.

There is danger in neglecting a cold. Many who have died of consumption dated their troubles from exposure, followed by a cold which settled on their lungs, and in a short time they were beyond the skill of the best physician. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, before it was too late, their lives would have been spared. This medicine has no equal for curing coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs.

DR. JACK'S WIFE

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

Author of "Dr. Jack," "Captain Tom," "Miss Caprice," Etc., Etc.

They advance slowly, for although there is a wide path leading from the gate, a driveway, in fact, under the shadow of the luxuriant trees, it is impossible to see distinctly, especially when one keeps watching the lights that gleam beyond. Once Avis stumbles and nearly falls.

"Beg pardon, my dear cousin—I was an idiot not to offer you my arm. Lean on me—you will find Larry Kennedy a tower of strength in an emergency."

"Do for heaven's sake talk in whispers, cousin. We are in the enemy's country, you know," she feels impelled to say, and he realizes that even a brave man may be indiscreet at time.

"I am dumb—miserably dumb," he replies.

It is just as well, for the house looms up before them now, though as yet they have had no glimpse of a living being.

Here are the stairs—they ascend, no longer groping in darkness, for the illumination is more than sufficient to disclose their surroundings. Should they meet any servants, Avis believes she will be able to manage them, first with magic silver, then by a glimpse of her fair face from behind the veil—women understand the power that lies in their grasp better than most men suspect—and if all else fails an appeal to arms can be made, when valiant Larry will be given an opportunity to show his mettle.

Fortunately it happens otherwise, and they are not confounded by any Cerberus at the door, demanding their business.

A strange silence reigns in the house, and Larry likens it to a great tomb. Here are lights and flowers, but where can they find the human occupants—why do they not hear the hum of voices or the notes of music?

So they pass into the great hall, where hang elegant paintings, relics of the chase, of war—many things that proclaim the proprietor a man of cultivation and wealth.

A spirit of unrest has assailed Avis—something seems to assure her that the man she loves and honors is under this roof and in danger. Putting this and that together—the note that came into Jack's hands, the apparently accidental conversation which she heard under her window at the hotel, and Larry's simple explanation regarding what he knows—her woman's wit has been able to figure out something like the truth. At any rate she believes her coming to be an inspiration.

A door on the right opens into a luxurious drawing-room—she runs thither and, holding her breath, looks in.

The gas is turned low, and not a sign of human occupancy does she discover. This is only a beginning, however—other rooms remain which will undoubtedly prove of a more profitable nature.

As she turns, after sweeping her eager eyes around the richly decorated room, she catches the attitude of Larry Kennedy. The New York dude is a picture as he stands there like a statue, his heavy cane grasped in one hand while the other is raised with the finger pressing his lips.

Evidently the little man has himself made a discovery of great importance—at least he holds such an opinion.

In an instant, as it seems, Doctor Jack's wife has flown to the side of her cousin—he says not a word, but points through the doorway close by, and Avis Evans, looking, is almost paralyzed with a sudden cold fear at the sight she beholds.

Imagine a loving, faithful wife being a witness to the caresses a rival bestows upon the man she loves with all her soul—that is what occurs in this grand Chilian mansion, which has been invaded by the Americans.

A woman sits in a chair—she half supports the head of a man seated very close to her, pats his face with gentle little strokes, and murmurs, while she thus caresses, words of love, devotion.

The light shines full upon his face, and Avis can see beyond all doubt the well-known features of her husband.

Under such circumstances even the mildest woman under heaven would feel her blood leap like boiling lava through her veins, and Avis does not pretend to be an angel, even if Jack has many times called her one.

She forgets everything save that here is a woman usurping her rights. One thing she does notice instantly, and it gives her considerable satisfaction—he makes no movement to return the caresses thus bestowed—his face, as seen in the gas light, proclaims the fact that he is asleep, or else, God help her, dead—it's pallor has alarmed her.

Obeying the impulse that urges even the weak to claim their rights, Avis starts forward. Larry trots at her heels like a faithful little dog—Larry who is ready to fight or flit at any hour of the day, such is the singular conglomeration of qualities that make up his composite parts.

As she enters the room perhaps the sweep of her garments reaches the ear of the dreamer who thus sits and caresses the face of the senseless doctor. At any rate she looks up in astonishment, for never a suspicion has entered her head that witnesses are present.

Avis Evans looks upon the face of her rival, the Chilian girl who loves her husband, and whose strange notions of right allow her to plot against the peace of a wife. She shivers as she looks—the wonderful beauty of that face astounds her; but never for one moment does she doubt the faithful love of her Jack—that has long ago been tried in the fire and found to be pure gold without alloy.

"Senorita, I will relieve you from further trouble—allow me to take charge of my husband," she says, quietly.

"You!" grasps the other, her eyes dilated with surprise, and growing fury—"cospita! I know you now—the woman he does not love, but calls his wife!"

CHAPTER V.

It is a cruel shaft, mercilessly aimed, but the shield of perfect trust and love still protects the heart of that American wife and turns the barb aside.

Avis winces under it, but her self-possession returns, and this makes her mistress of the situation. Even in the house of her rival, which she has invaded without an invitation, Avis proves her superior powers.

"What you insinuate is entirely false. You lured him here with a letter in which you promised him certain information respecting the business that keeps him in Chili. Under the name of Don Rafael you did this. He came, fearing nothing, and ready to brave all risks in order to learn more. You failed to move him while he had his senses, and you steal these away in some manner so that you may win. But you forgot one thing—Doctor Jack's wife. She has a mortgage on his affection, which you nor any other woman dare not raise—she is here to press her claim—to prove herself worthy of the love and devotion of a man who never in all his life has done a dishonorable deed. Once again I tell you to leave that seat—I am present to care for my own!"

Her words are cool and clear—they do not speak of passion, such as a Chilian girl might naturally exhibit under similar circumstances, but at the same time there is a light in her gray eyes that warns Senorita Marilla to beware.

At first she assumes a defiant air—she is in her own castle, and that gives courage. Then her mood changes—perhaps she sees Larry, who, struck by her wonderful beauty, has assumed an air of powerful admiration, just as a sun-worshiper might gaze upon the object of his adoration—his singular face when thus set is enough to disturb one's mind.

Be that as it may, she allows Jack's head to fall upon the side of the chair, as she springs to her feet to face his wife—the shock has some power to partially dispel the effect of the subtle drug which, given in the cigarette, has stolen the doctor's senses away, for he opens his eyes, stares vacantly about him, catches sight of Avis, smiles in perfect content, and sleeps again.

This one incident gives hope, however, that he may be overcoming the drug, which has not laid hold of him quite as powerfully as was anticipated.

"How did you come here?" asks Marilla, curiosity rising above all else for the moment—she has been almost stupefied at this sudden drop in her plans, this unexpected appearance of the brave American wife of the man with whom she has become enamored.

"My cousin brought me"—it might be more correct the other way, since Larry makes a poor leader—"we put one thing and another together and—well, we arrived, you see, in time to relieve you of all responsibility," and she bends over Doctor Jack, raises his head, caresses his brow, and then gently shakes him to see whether he may not be aroused.

"What have you done to him, woman—why does he act this way?" she demands, pausing in her efforts, to look up into the face of the daughter of Don Rafael, who, having recovered her senses in a measures, now shrugs her plump shoulders as she replies:—

"Carramba! how should I know—we were talking of business—he draws his chair closer to mine so that he can look in my eyes"—turning aside, unable to meet the disdainful gaze of his wife—"I feel his breath on my cheek—then I hear a groan, and his head falls on my shoulder. Well, I am surprised, but I am not afraid—I say to myself, 'this man loves me—I will bring him to his senses with my touch upon his face.' Bah! you are so rude as to disturb me before I quite succeed, but I do not despair. He is mine—you cannot take him from me!" defiantly.

"What brazen assurance!" Avis cries—she has never known its equal.

"Aha! you are Doctor Jack's wife by law, but look at me—do you think he is blind—does your plain face compare with mine—I have been called the belle of all Chili—at my feet have knelt great men—one only I encourage, and he is my devoted slave. You may hover over him, madam, you may force him to deny the truth, but hark you, he loves me!"

What blasphemy this seems in the ears of that wife—and yet not for one moment does her perfect trust falter—she knows the man whom she loves, she had read the depths of his heart, and found there an integrity that all earth cannot swerve. Angels could not make her believe him guilty of any deceit toward the woman he calls his wife.

Again she shakes Jack—if he would only come back to his senses they could leave this place.

"I do not believe your words—look, in his fingers he holds the end of a cigarette—you rolled that, senorita, and in it I read the cause of this strange stupor. Wake up, Jack, and tell this woman she plots in vain—that when she next seeks to trap a man let her make sure he has no wife to interfere."

The third shake grows more energetic, and Doctor Jack even grunts, as a man will at being disturbed in a delightful nap—grunts and settles himself down in the easy-chair as though he is contented to be let alone, which his faithful spouse does not mean shall occur, for she gives him other and more vigorous turns, just as one might use a dear friend who had swallowed certain drugs and must be kept awake, as slumber means death.

This peculiar proceeding is watched by the two persons in the room, though of course with different emotions—Larry desires to see his friend and cousin arouse himself, while the senorita sneers at the apparent futile efforts Avis puts forth.

"Spare yourself the trouble—he will not respond to your appeals," she says.

"It is false—see, he is even now showing signs of returning consciousness."

She renews her endeavors—the massage of love may yet win—it is a wife who thus strives to arouse her liege lord.

Larry has been an interested spectator to this spectacle, but now he finds something to occupy his attention in another quarter. Voices are heard—and new actors appear upon the scene.

"Great Scott! how is this?—the lady—it is Avis, and here!" says Lord Rackett as he pushes his great athletic figure through the door, followed by Colonel Garcia.

Was ever fortune so cruel? What has sent them here at this particular moment, when Doctor Jack lies helpless in his chair with Avis hovering over him, leaving only Larry, small of statute but a giant in nerve, to stand against them.

He grasps the situation at once and pushes himself forward so as to come in front—what conversation he heard between these men on the Plaza Heelright has warned him concerning their attentions, and he feels that a hawk has suddenly darted down upon the dove-cote, threatening its fair inmates with harm.

"Stand back, fellows!" snaps this animated dwarf, as he whirls his heavy cane in the faces of the advancing couple, who, startled by the unexpected bar placed upon their further progress, come to a halt.

If looks can kill, their scowls will do the American up in quick order. They exchange a meaning glance and then move, not forward, but to either side. Such a division of forces will have a disastrous effect upon his case, as it leaves him unable to watch both men and protect front and rear.

While this little affair takes place Avis still wrestles with the stupefied doctor—she spares him not, since the stiuation has become so critical in its nature—Larry is devoted, but even such bravery when in a small body cannot stand out long against overwhelming numbers. His strong arm—Doctor Jack's—would soon turn the scale. So she works and talks industriously, pleading with him to arouse himself, to shake off this lethargy and save them from ruin.

"Wake up, Jack, dear Jack! It is Avis who calls, your own Avis. We are beset, and need your help. Wake up, or all is lost, for Larry cannot hold out against them!" she cries, accompanying every few words with a shake that makes his teeth rattle, and by this means she is slowly but surely causing the drugged doctor to throw off the incubus that has for a while paralyzed his brain—he gasps for breath, opens his eyes, and stares in a stupid manner about him.

"Larry—how in the world—oh, yes, we're in Spain yet—I see—and things look dused ugly for us. Bless me, I can't keep awake—it's agony to try, Avis; there's a dear girl, let me have a cat-nap and I'll be feeling wonderfully better."

But the same "dear girl" is just as determined that he shall not have a relapse—the change, if any occurs, must be in the other direction, and so this singular massage of love continues, while Doctor Jack groans and expostulates; presently, perhaps, she will succeed in getting through his benumbed brain the real cause for it all, when the man must become himself.

Aready Larry struggles in the arms of the enemy; the two men, turning, have come at him from different directions. His heavy cane does yoeman service, and the first whack sends Colonel Leon Garcia, that noble exponent of "how to win glory from behind a tree or stone wall," to the floor, with stars dancing before his eyes.

Unfortunately Larry is not an Irishman wielding a shillelah, and before he can recover himself after making this ten-strike, the second of his enemies has descended upon him as might an avalanche in the Alps.

Lord Rackett is so large, and his antagonist of such diminutive stature, that it would seem as though the latter must be crushed at once; but the battle is not always to the strong nor the race to the swift, and Larry is so exceedingly nimble that he manages to elude the punishment meant for him, while at the same time he keeps up a vicious fusillade of savage kicks at the shins of the Briton, which must be very exasperating and painful.

Garcia picks himself up from the floor—Garcia, who is a beautiful sight to behold, for the heavy cane thumped him on the forehead, and already a lump has arisen the size of an egg.

From his eyes flash the fires of hatred and revenge. The hot Spanish blood demands retaliation, and woe to Larry if he once feels this man's grip.

No wonder Avis increases her cries and the fury of her massage. He must arouse himself or they are all lost. And it happens that while she thus entreats and exhorts she by chance gives utterance to the name of the man whom he has learned to despise—the man who has sworn to wed Doctor Jack's widow. It electrifies him as might a galvanic battery. He springs erect.

"Ah! where is this British lion, this plotter against a woman's peace?" he cries; "let me show him how an American can defend his own. I see him, the rascal. Avis, dear, step aside, and don't fear, for your Jack is on deck, and himself again."

Yes, thank heaven! Doctor Jack has come to time.

CHAPTER VI.

The situation has undergone a change, and now the American party is on top. Avis no longer has cause to cry out and feel that a dire calamity overshadows them, for she has perfect faith in Jack's ability to take care of any man opposed to him.

When Doctor Jack so suddenly leaves the side of his wife, his eyes are fastened upon the tall figure of the Briton, who is waging his queer and unequal fight against the plucky bantam, Larry Kennedy. En route, however, Jack has his attention drawn to the Chilian officer, whose attitude is so threatening that it is plain to be seen the dude stands in more danger from this source than from Lord Rackett.

Hence, Jack changes his course, and heads for the colonel, who, with a quick eye for danger, which has served him on many an occasion in the recent war, realizes that a tornado is bearing down upon him.

The Chilian is wise beyond his years, and discreet. There is not a man in all the country better able to take care of himself.

A dead man is of small service to any one, and under this policy Colonel Leon knows how to skip out of an engagement with a whole skin.

He waits not on the order of his going, but, dropping his feorcious aspect, as well as the dude's cane, which he has picked up from the floor, he turns and makes a beautiful flying leap through the door, leaving the Englishman alone to face his foes. At any rate, the colonel will live to fight another day.

Doctor Jack can now turn his attention in the direction of the Briton, who sees him coming, and is not averse to the meeting. He flings Larry to one side with a tremendous sweep of his muscular arm, as one might brush away a troublesome fly.

"At last!" he exclaims, almost savagely.

He has cherished a spirit of revenge for years, and here is the man against whom it has been directed. The woman he once loved, ay, and for whom he still cherishes a passion, looks on. It will give him the keenest delight to punish her husband before her eyes.

As for Doctor Jack, what he has lately heard concerning this man, from the lips of the one with whom he has been in league, gives him a fierce desire to meet the Briton—to teach him that Americans are ever ready to do battle in defense of their wives, and give the man a lesson he may long remember.

So they meet.

It is like the impact of mighty forces, for both men are powerful, both urged on by the strongest force in the world—hatred.

Avis looks on with glistening eyes. Her only fear is lest Jack may have been weakened by the drugged cigarette, and unable to do himself justice. In such an event she stands ready to fly to his aid—something she holds in her hand will change the tide of battle instantly—at any rate, Jack must not be hurt.

Larry, too, watches with intense interest, and is ready to join in the fray, if necessary. He can hang upon the British bull-dog's arm, and prevent him from utilizing his full power, or, by clutching one of his legs, trip him up.

It happens, however, that Doctor Jack does not need any assistance. He has been thoroughly aroused by the gravity of the situation, and the presence of this man who covets his wife, so he shows himself at his best.

They whirl about the room locked in each other's embrace like a teetotum, or a couple of spinning dervishes, coming against the far wall with a crash. It is Lord Rackett who gets the full benefit of this contact, and it rather takes the wind out of his sails.

He soon concludes that he does not care quite as much about demolishing the Yankee who carried off the prize, as he imagined. It must have been a mistake. Then there is Garcia, poor Garcia, who received such a wicked crack over the head. Perhaps his mind is wandering, and he may get into some trouble unless he has a friend to look after him.

COURT OF ASSIZE.

The court of assize was opened before Chief Justice Robertson on Monday afternoon

The bar was represented by Messrs. W. R. Riddell, Q.C., Toronto; A. M. Deroche, Q.C., D. H. Preston, Q.C., J. L. Whiting, Kingston; E. G. Porter, Belleville; J. H. Madden, Frank Carscallen, W. S. His Lordship gave a lucid charge to the jury as to the case that was to come before them, that of John F. Troy, for the murder of Angus McLeod, which was unique in the legal history of Ontario, and the only one of the kind that had ever come before him. If a true bill were found by them, and the prisoner pleaded guilty, he (the Judge) would instruct the clerk to enter not guilty. But, being warned, if he persisted in giving his story, and the detectives of the Crown were able to corroborate his confession, and the crown satisfied him that his statement was true, he would have no hesitation in pronouncing sentence on him.

His Lordship also instructed them as to recent changes in the law, congratulated them on the beautiful town and fruitful county they represented, and referred in glowing terms to the Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and her benign reign. He spoke strongly of the disgrace of consigning our aged and indigent poor to the county jail.

The first cases on the docket were McCloskey vs. Stewart and Queen vs. Everett Williams. A report of these will be found on our 2nd page.

On Tuesday afternoon Jno. F. Troy was called and in response to his Lordship stated that he would like to have the aid of counsel. His Lordship asked Mr. W. H. Perry if he would be willing to undertake the case. Mr. Perry stated that if no one else would take the case, he would be willing provided he had time to consult with the prisoner. Mr. Perry then retired an counselled with the County Attorney, Mr. Riddell. Mr. Riddell afterwards announced that Troy would plead not guilty and the prisoner answered "not guilty." He also said he wanted to plead guilty, but wanted to give a few explanations as to certain statements. The evidence and confession of the prisoner will be found elsewhere.

Queen vs. McCarney et al.—Laid over until next assizes, the same sureties for their appearance being furnished.

GRAND JURY RECALLED.

His Lordship discharged the Grand Jury on Wednesday afternoon and most of them started for their homes in various parts of the county the same day. At the conclusion of Troy's trial it was found that his accomplice in the murder, Hughes, who was brought to Napanee as a witness, was also criminally implicated. This necessitated the recalling of the Grand Jury, and word was at once sent out for their attendance on Thursday morning.

The Judge in addressing the grand jury on their appearance Thursday morning stated it was an unusual occurrence to call them back. It was not his custom to discharge grand juries so early in the session of court.

In the trial of Troy, in his statement under oath, not what he had previously stated before, he disclosed an important fact, viz., that there were two men in the house with him, Penn and Hughes. In the other confessions he had shielded his accomplices. He under oath said he fired the first shot, Penn the second, and he, Troy, the third. These three were burglars, illegally in the house, and everyone was responsible in law for whatever any of them did, even the murder. Troy is unable to say anyone was shot, so Mrs. McLeod will be called to prove he was shot. It is not of much consequence who killed McLeod now. There will be two charges, burglary and murder against Hughes.

The evidence against Hughes is the evidence of a condemned murderer. It would not change the sentence of Troy, as he had not yet given it, but might affect the time when the sentence will go into effect.

The Grand Jury, after being out over an hour, returned true bills against Frank Hayes, alias Penn, and John Hughes, for murder and burglary in the McLeod case. His Lordship asked where Penn was, and ordered that a bench warrant be issued for his arrest. The whereabouts of Penn is at present unknown.

Hughes was then brought into court. He is a medium sized man with a decidedly repulsive countenance. He seemed quite unconcerned as he sat in the prisoner's box and gazed around the court room. He is by no means as shrewd and intelligent as his fellow convict, Troy.

The prisoner was called to stand up, and when the charges of burglary and murder were read to him replied not guilty. His Lordship asked prisoner if he was ready to go on with the trial, and if he had counsel. He stated that he was ready, but had not counsel. At the request of His Lordship Messrs. U. M. Wilson and W. H. Perry consented to act as counsel for the prisoner, and asked time to consult with the prisoner, which was granted.

Parks vs. Baker, et al.—Action for malicious prosecution. The defendants were five of the leading citizens of Bath, and the case came out of the arrest of Geo. Parks for an unnatural crime, the victim being his thirteen-year-old daughter. The former arrest and trial before Magistrate Daly was conducted by the then acting County Attorney, Mr. G. F. Ruttan, and the fight was as to whether Mr. Ruttan should furnish the names of the citizens of Bath who had asked that the investigation be held on charge of incest. A number of witnesses were heard.

The case was dismissed. Messrs. English & Perry and J. L. Whiting for Pltff.; W. R. Riddell for Defts.

Cassiday vs. Morrow.—Action for illegal distress, was going on all day yesterday, and court sat until 10 o'clock last evening, when it was adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning. A large number of witnesses were heard, and the evidence was very conflicting. The result of this and the remaining cases on the docket will be given next week.

SELBY.

Farmers are busily sowing in this vicinity.

There was a large crowd at the Methodist church on Sunday night, when Rev. Limbert preached a very able sermon from Gal. vi, 7 8.

Miss Gertie Miller, of Napanee, spent a few days of last week a guest of Miss Louie Limbert, at the parsonage.

Mrs. Stewart Smith and son Arthur, of Hawley, are visiting at J. McGinness'.

Do not forget to come to the grand concert, to be given in the town hall, Selby, on the evening of May 22nd, by the Selby Concert club. A good programme of songs, recitations, dialogues and instrumentals will be rendered. Proceeds are in aid of the India Famine Relief Fund. Admission, 15 cts., children 10 cents.

FREDERICKSBURGH.

Work at the oil well is progressing nicely. The new tools are in use and are of the heaviest class used. Everything necessary to prosecute the work to a successful issue has been procured and every pains taken to obtain a thorough test. Two shifts of men are working day and night. The well is being enlarged from one of eight inches to one of thirteen inches in diameter. The drill is making good headway having gone about 80 feet since Monday.

Friday night last chicken thieves visited the barn of Chas Brown and carried off fourteen fowls. The parties evidently intended to dispose of them as the heads were cut off and left on the spot. They would have doubtless carried off the whole lot but for Mrs. Gosden, who, on hearing the disturbance, lit up the house, which stopped further loss.

Mrs. John Milling left Friday last for Kingston Hospital for treatment. Her case was gradually becoming more critical.

John Milling, reeve of South Fredericksburgh, has been drilling a stock well near his barn and at a depth of about thirty-five feet struck a strong vein of gas. When the well is sufficiently clear of water, gas flows very strong and burns fiercely until cut off by the flow of water. The flames burst up about eight feet high.

BATH.

Mr. M. S. Plumley, traveller for the McCormick machine company of Chicago, was in town yesterday on business.

Miss Northmore, of Cataraqui, spent Saturday and Sunday with her brother, H. S. Northmore, M. D., of this place.

Several young men of Kingston wheeled up last Sunday and spent the day here. Among them we noticed the familiar face of H. Powell, photographer.

Mr. Max Robinson has received another shipment of buggies from Mr. Finkle, of Newburgh. Max is a great pusher and no doubt will work up a large trade.

Rev. W. B. Tucker, M. A., Ph.D., pastor of the Bath Methodist Church, delivered his farewell sermon last Sunday evening to a very large and attentive audience. It called forth much praise from those who had the pleasure of listening to it. It was one of the best sermons ever delivered in the Bath church. Dr. Tucker is a very able and pleasing speaker, and no doubt will reach the top rung of the ladder of fame e'er many years have passed by.

Mr. Hogle is slightly improving in health.

Quite a number of men attended court in Napanee this week.

Struck as by Lightning.

Exactly describes the condition of a hard or soft corn to which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has been applied. So quickly does Putnam's Extractor cure that its action seems magical. Try it.

NAPANEE MILLS.

The cheese factories are running and have been for some time.

George Clement, of Deseronto, accompanied by his family, visited his father, A. C. Clement, Sunday last.

M. Kehoe met with a painful accident last week at the cement works. In crossing the tracks in the mail sheds he fell striking his forehead, and cutting it severely. After the wound was dressed he was able to resume his duties. Mr. Kehoe is the chemist at these works.

John Boyle has purchased the double house on Church street, from the Trust and Loan Company, of Toronto.

Word has been received from Oran Scouten, who left here early in the spring to take a course of training in New York hospital on Blackwell's Island, that he is succeeding well and is very much interested in the work.

ENTERPRISE.

Again we hear the rattle of the milk wagon and the solemn squeel of the pigs when they hear the rattle of the can, and also the yawn of the farmer when he has not whey enough to accommodate his four-footed friends.

Johnson Graham has moved into the house lately vacated by Wm. Hawley.

Master Allen Peters spent Sunday at Colebrook.

Edgar Campbell was renewing old acquaintances in town on Sunday.

C. D. Wager spent Saturday at Napanee.

Mr. Sidney Huffman, who is confined to his bed, is slowly improving.

Mrs. James Hill was the guest of Mr. Henry Switzer, this week.

The hour of service in the Methodist church has been changed from 7 o'clock to 7.30, the change to take effect Sunday eve, 16th and to be continued during the summer months.

W. J. Mellow and wife spent Sunday at her father's, W. J. Leonard, Westbrook.

One of our young gents in town went into a store and asked for a pair of boots. The store keeper not having the right size to accommodate him asked liberty to try on the shoe box.

Don't forget the Royal Templars' Dramatic club are to play that grand old play, Ten nights in a Bar-room, in Cox's hall, under the auspices of Enterprise Division of Sons of Temperance, on Saturday evening, 15th May. Come one, come all and don't forget to tell the old maids of Reidville to come. They might stand a chance yet.

Our Sabbath school is in a flourishing condition at present with a roll of 145 names and an average attendance of eighty-five, with K. B. Booth as superintendent.

Maggie Hamilton spent Arbor day at the school house, superintending the work of the ladies' department.

Willie Hamilton commenced his summer course in the cheese factory on Monday.

Lydia Peters spent Monday in Kingston.

Alma Patterson, of Switzerville, was the guest of Mrs. E. J. Wagar this week.

Oh, say! I must tell Reidville that it must take care of its own old maids as Enterprise only accepts students under 25 years of age and besides we pick our company. I would think that Reidville ought to be able to find news enough in its large hamlet without re-issuing Enterprise items.

TAMWORTH.

Jas. Sherman, of Kingston, paid Tamworth a visit one day last week.

Drs. Clark and Wilson were in Napanee, attending the spring assizes.

The school trustees met to-day for the purpose of building a new school house.

Thos. Cunningham caught two small black foxes, which have been viewed by several at their store. They are still alive.

J. Floyd & Son have their wall completed for their new store.

The concert to be held on Thursday evening, May 20th, in aid of the free library, is going to be a rare treat. The Kingston Banjo and Quartette Club and Miss Herring, of Napanee, are some of the outside talent to be present, besides the best of local talent. Anyone missing this will be sorry ever afterwards.

"Orange Blossoms" Kingston Dramatic Club, Opera House, Monday evening, 17th. See programme.

Lonsdale Woolen Mills.

Generally Disarranged.

Owing to the lengthy murder trial, court report, advertising, etc., our general make up has been greatly disarranged this week. Our readers will have to look all through The Beaver for local news, country correspondence, etc. Considerable correspondence is also crowded out. If you are not a subscriber of The Beaver, get last week's and commence the new story, Dr. Jack's Wife. The balance of this year will be given to new subscribers for 50 cents.

YARKER

George Prescott died last Saturday and was buried here on Monday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Cannum preached to the Workmen here. The turnout was not very large owing to the wet weather.

The Somerville Bros., Frank and Will, wheeled to Yarker Saturday.

Another little Atkins has arrived in the village and Frank looks proud.

E. Emberly has moved into his new residence here.

Alfred Connolly has his windmill in operation.

Rev. M. C. Sagar has had his house neatly painted. We were sorry to learn of John Manion losing his residence by fire in Manitoba.

—Frank Anderson says His Perfect Racer is all right and hopes to be able to show some some fast time soon.

—Parties in want of a good hair cut and shave should call on L. A. Scott, at the Campbell House barber shop. Special attention to ladies' and children's hair cutting —"Blood will tell," the old adage, seems to be exemplified among the children of St. Mary Magdalene S. S., who are studying for the Jubilee entertainment. Those who take the most interest, and are most progressive are the children of educated parents.

THINK OF THE LITTLE THINGS

about the house that would be improved by being painted. Painting is not the hard work it used to be. You can get just the color you want, mixed, ready to use, and no matching of colors, no fussing, no trouble. Open the can, stir the paint, dip in the brush, and go to painting. In the time it took to mix paints, by the old methods you can have the work well finished.

One kind of paint will not do for a house, table, buggy, and a bath tub any more than one kind of cloth would answer for all sorts of clothing. THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS are made for all purposes. Not one paint for all surfaces, but a different paint for each surface.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS FAMILY PAINT is made for cupboards, shelves, baseboards, etc. It has an oil finish that can be washed. It is made in twenty-one colors.

Our booklet, "Paint Points," is a good thing for you to have. It tells many interesting things about paints—good and bad paints. It tells what to paint, and how to paint it. It is free. A postal will bring it. For booklet, address 19 St. Antoine Street, Montreal.

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment Should be Kept Ready.

Messrs. Douglas & Co., Napanee:—

Dear Sirs,—Having had wonderful success with your Liniment with my stock, etc., feel it my duty to write you in behalf of same. Our cattle were troubled a good deal with caked bags. They were so badly caked we thought they would lose the use of them, but as usual your Douglas' Egyptian Liniment was applied twice, and in twenty-four hours we could milk as well as ever. When anything in our home or stables goes wrong your Liniment is called for at once; it never has failed. Hoping this letter will assist you in putting forward a great Liniment,

I remain, yours truly,

ROBERT HARKNESS.

Tamworth, Ont. 17d

—Grinding every day at Close's mills. 17tf

—Mr. Ben. Palmer, aged 60, died at Belleville on Monday.

—Joseph Lowry has taken rooms over J. W. Anderson's shop John street.

—About twenty-five wheelmen from Kingston and fifteen from Belleville were in town on Sunday last.

—The Paisley House is very popular with wheelmen. Twenty-eight took dinner there on Sunday last.

—Patronize C. H. Boyes' new photograph gallery and you will not go wanting for a good photograph.

—The fishing season's now at hand, the finny tribe abounds, the same old lies we heard last year will once more go the rounds.

—Artist F. S. Richardson is making a speciality of groups and cabinets. Only first-class work turned out, which is what the public desire. tf

The job department of THE BEAVER is equipped with everything necessary for turning out work in first-class style, and on short notice. Prices right.

—Mr. J. S. Hulett has a very large assortment of the finest and cheapest picture frames for the money. If you have a picture you want framed take it to him.

—Mr. Oscar W. Dey has secured a position at Nelson, B. C. He writes that many old friends in that part of the country were eager to hear the news from Ontario.

—The Robinson company had quite an attraction in their well appointed store on Friday and Saturday of last week in the shape of a fine piano, an expert player, and a fine assortment of perfumes and sheet music.

—Rev. C. O. Johnston, Toronto, has been promised a new silk hat should the Sunday street car by-law be defeated in that city. Some people may suspect that he is fighting for that new hat as well as talking through the old one.

—Spring Lamb, Western Beef from Guelph, choicest Veal, Mutton and Pork—best quality and cheap as the ordinary, at Central Meat Market or Smith's grocery. Onions, rhubarb, asparagus, and all kinds of fresh fruit and fine groceries at J. F. Smith's grocery. 19

—Be loyal to your town. Buy what you want here. The merchant you patronize may some day be able to direct a dollar into your pocket; in any event you needn't look for work or patronage from Toronto. When the "departmental," shark gets your money he is through with you.

Remember C. L. Shannon will sell all kinds of field and garden seeds, all new and lower than any reliable competitor. Timothy from $1.80 per bushell up; Alfalfa very low this year. All the latest varieties of garden seeds just in from the most reliable growers. Canned goods 5c. per can. All kinds of groceries as cheap as any one will sell them. Flour, $2.40 per cwt. Cash paid for raw furs. Bailed hay for sale. A carload of Giant Prolific Ensilage corn, the very best, just received. Red fern wheat and vetches. Symington's old stand.

—Last winter Mr. Rayburn, Collector of Customs and inland revenue at Deseronto, was dismissed for "offensive partizenship," and Mr. Valleau appointed in his place. It was taken for granted that Mr. Valleau would act as collector of inland revenue, but Mr. Rayburn received no notice of dismissal, so held on to the inland revenue work, worth about $200 a year, and respectfully declined to resign. Final action has now been taken in the matter and Mr. Rayburn has been dismissed and the duties and salary of both his offices have been given to Mr. Valleau.

—Belleville Bankers defeated the city at cricket on Saturday last by 80 to 68.

—The agency of the Merchants Bank here is being painted, papered and brightened up generally.

—It is understood there will be a large influx of American visitors to Glen Island the coming season.

—Mr. George B. Fleming, Stella, was married to Ida J. Craig at Kingston, Wednesday evening, 5th inst.

—The best of ground feed or barley meal from clean grain for sale cheap. Responsible parties can have three months on ton lots.
17tf JAMES A. CLOSE.

—Some new maps and other apparatus were purchased last week for the use of the public schools and Institute.

—Mr. Fred Sherman writes from Rossland that in less than two hours after arriving there he struck work at $3 50 per day.

—Mr. Wesley Hemstreet went out to Coyne to take charge of that factory while the proprietor attended court in Napanee this week.

Go to R. Lawson's meat shop for prime fresh beef, pork, veal, lamb, all kinds of salted meats, all kinds of poultry, home-made sausage in season, fine sugar-cured hams, English breakfast bacon always on hand. Call and be convinced.

—Willis Saunders, of Marmora, accused of a serious offence against a nine-year-old girl, was sentenced to three years in the Penitentiary.

—Caswell Burley got his fingers in the cogs of the ice cream freezer at Rikley's restaurant last Saturday, and in consequence has a very sore hand.

—It is proposed by the City Fathers of Brantford to tax the wheelmen of the city $1 a year each for the purpose of building cinder paths on the local streets.

—The barge Water Lily, while on her way to Valleyfield Que., with a cargo of 8,000 bushels of grain, from Cobourg, struck, and went down, in Coteau lake on Friday last.

—Mr. R. J. Perry offers for sale his beautiful residence on Piety Hill at a bargain. There is no more desirable location or property in Napanee. See advertisement.

A. S. Kimmerly is selling reliable garden and field seeds cheaper than any other dealer. 4 lbs. American Wonder Peas, 25c.; choice timothy, $1.85 per bushel. A car of Southern sweet corn to be sold cheap; also a car of bran. It will pay you to get my prices before buying. Four tons of that celebrated 25c tea in stock, the best we have ever sold. Keewatin flour is still taking the lead. Canned corn, 5c, new stock. 4 gallons coal oil, 65c. Patent medicines, 20 per cent cheaper than other dealers.

—Mr. W. E. Anderson, of Ameliasburg, last week had a tooth pulled. After he went home it commenced bleeding and bled all night. A doctor had to be called in to stop it.

—Situations are apparently very hard to secure these days. A Napanee drygoods merchant this week advertised in the Mail-Empire for a salesman, and on Wednesday had over fifty applications by letter for the position.

—Samuel White, of Belleville, a pedlar, was struck by a light engine on the Sidney crossing last week. His wagon was wrecked and it was thought that he was killed, but is now recovering.

—James Young, an aged resident of Hungerford, died near Bogert on Sunday, May 3. The deceased was born 74 years ago in Fredericksburgh and had resided in Hungerford for 46 years.

—Mr. Wm. Perry, who is now residing in Napanee, drove down to Violet last Sunday to lead the class in the Methodist Church there, of which he has been leader continuously for sixty years.

—The Education Department has issued a circular directing Public School teachers to devote the afternoon of Friday, June 18th, to the discussion for their scholars of the events of Queen Victoria's reign.

New currants and Valentia raisins, 3 lbs. for 25c.; first-class tea, 20c. and 25c. lb.; 3 lbs. biscuits, 20c.; 4 lbs. ginger snaps, 25c.; honey in comb, 10c; West India molasses, 40c. per gal.; white wine vinegar, 25c. gal.; 3 lbs. mixed candies, 25c., good family flour, $2 40; rice, tapioca, toilet soap in great variety; all kinds of crockery cheap. H. DOUGLAS.

—The Belleville Intelligencer has started an agitation to allow wheelmen to use the sidewalks. If it is granted the pedestrians will likely take to the streets. A wagon can be heard and dodged, but the silent steed creeps up and smites one unawares.

A commercial traveler coming into our workshop the other day and seeing the number of customers' watches we had on hand said we did as much repairing business as the other two shops together. F. Chinneck personally oversees the repair department and guarantees satisfaction.

—Turkey's terms of peace with Greece include the payment of an indemnity of £3,000,000, a rearrangement of the Greek frontier, the annulling of the treaties favoring the Greeks, the session of the Greek fleet to Turkey, and the settlement of the Cretan question.

—Sixteen persons, all steerage passengers, lost their lives on the steamer Leona, which left New York on Saturday for Galveston and returned with a fire in her hold. The steerage passengers were penned between decks, and the fierce flames drove back those who attempted to rescue them.

—At a meeting held last Saturday night at the Paisley House, the Napanee base ball team was organized for the season with the following officers:—President, Dr. Edwards; vice president, Will Smith; manager William Ponton; committee of management, J. T. Livesley, Alex. Armstrong, W. Smith, A. Root, W. Ponton. The team will enter into practice at once and are open for challenges.

The May number of the Canadian Home Journal (Toronto) comes to us with a suggestion of apple blossoms and spring flowers. Among other things it contains an entertaining article on "The Rise and Fall of the May Pole" by Thomas Swift; an editorial on the American question; a prettily illustrated page on Golf, by the lady Champion; the latest fashions, music, art, book-chat, and short stories; a sketch of early spring in Edinburgh; receipts and household notes, by Mrs. Jean Joy. Subscriptions $1.00 a year, 10 cents a copy.

—Alex. Elliott, who secured the champion coasting trophy last year, was challenged by J. S. McKeay and Charles Richardson, and the contest came off on 29th ult., on Jarvis street, Toronto, 11.30 p. m. It was decided that the two latter riders should coast first, and Elliott should race the winner of the race. In this race Richardson led at the winning post by ten yards. In the final race between Elliott and Richardson, the latter gentleman was again victorious by twelve yards, and thus became possessor of the handsome trophy presented by the Mail and Empire. The course was from Carlton to Shuter street, and start was made on inclined boards. About two hundred spectators were present, there was no hitch or complaint of any kind. The new champion rode a "Cleveland" racer, while the other two men were mounted on "Gendrons." Boyle & Son are the agents in Napanee for the Cleveland.

—One of the most serious results of the new tariff yet recorded is the closing down of W. C. McDonald's big tobacco manufacturing company in Montreal. The factory employs more than a thousand men, who will be thrown out of employment. The Dominion Wire Company will also close down if the new tariff goes into effect, and nearly 200 men will be thrown out of employment.

—Mrs. Wm. McCaul, an old and well known resident of Napanee and its vicinity, died on Thursday afternoon, at the residence of her son Edward, at Riverside. She was the mother of Messrs. John and Edward McCaul and Mrs. Carscallen, all of Richmond, and Mrs. A. Province, of Deseronto, and well known to our readers. She was an old and constant member of the Methodist church. Her husband, the late Wm. McCaul, died some years ago in west Napanee.

Lock Your Doors.

It is said that the convict Troy in one of his conversations said when they left the barn near the railway station to "prowl the town," they first tried the doors and windows of two houses west of McLeod's, probably G. M. Elliott's and Dr. Ruttan's, but found them securely fastened. Unfortunately the windows were not made secure at Mr. McLeod's, and hence the awful results. It behoves householders to take precaution in this respect, as burglars and sneak thieves of this class only enter where the carelessness of the citizens gives them the opportunity. They do not possess a burglar's outfit, but in most cases carry firearms.

A Boston Court Case.

A friend has sent us a marked copy of the Boston Globe of the 10th inst., containing a rather sensational report of a trial in East Cambridge of a will case. Mr. Hayes, an English gentleman, died on the 9th of February, 1895, leaving a number of important legacies. A Mrs. Desmond was one of the ladies whose name appeared several times in the case. Just at the conclusion of the day's hearing the following occurs in connection with the evidence of Mr. Thomas Blair, a London solicitor, who drew up the will:

"Q—Has Mrs. Desmond been married since? A—Yes, she has; to a gentleman named Oronhyadeka. (Laughter).

Q—What is that gentleman? A—I believe he is a Canadian Indian chief, and represented an insurance company. They were married in April, 1895, a few months after Mr. Hayes' death."

LONDON.

Customs Officials Superannuated—The New Hospital—Bucket Shop Prosecutions.

London, May 11.—Three of the oldest London Custom House officers have been superannuated. They are: Mr. John Siddons, senior appraiser; Mr. G. D. Sutherland, junior appraiser, and Mr. J. L. Williams, landing waiter at the M.C.R. station. All three were appointed by the Conservative Government, Mr. Siddons having been given his place three days after the late Sir John Macdonald's Ministry was defeated 24 years ago.

Messrs. Fred. J. White and H. Stockwell of London, England, representatives of an English syndicate, who are negotiating with the Imperial Oil Company for the purchase of their entire plant at Petrolia, were in the city yesterday. Mr. Hinton, of London, England, is another member of the syndicate. They have been in Petrolia for the past two weeks, and are accompanied by an inspector and auditor. It is understood that the deal is all but consummated, and that after the annual meeting of the Imperial Oil Company shareholders on Wednesday a change of ownership will take place.

The chief and a posse of policemen visited a number of stock selling establishments this morning and seized the papers, messages and office paraphernalia and took them to police headquarters. The names of some twenty men who were in the places at the time were taken. They will be charged with frequenting a gaming house.

Wheat Shipments.

Winnipeg, May 11.—Reports to the Calgary Herald from all over the farming districts in Alberta say all the seeding is done, and in most places the wheat is up one or two inches. The season is nearly one month earlier than last year. Wheat shipments from Port William and Port Arthur last week amounted to 1,115,612 bushels; receipts were 242,712 bushels and there are 2,455,931 bushels yet in store there.

International Postal Conference.

Washington, D.C., May 11.—A scheme is being urged, and may be submitted at this Postal Congress for report at the next, providing for international telegraphic service at the post-offices of some of the leading cities of the various countries. This already is in operation at some places abroad, but its advocates want its operation made general.

Stratford.

Stratford, May 10.—Another cut has been made in the G.T.R. staff here which takes effect to-day, and by it seven men employed as wipers and blacksmiths have been dismissed in order to make room for a number of firemen who have been put back. It is expected that more dismissals will take place in a day or two.

A BATTLE FOR BREAD

DR. TALMAGE ON FAMINES PHYSICAL AND SPIRITUAL.

The Birds of the Bible—Elijah and the Ravens That Fed Him—The Ravens That the Lord Has To-day—The Vast Family of God.

Washington, May 9.—Dr. Talmage has returned home after a most remarkably successful tour through the west, and in behalf of the famine struck of India, speaking in the great corn centers to vast multitudes of people and raising many carloads of breadstuffs and many thousands of dollars. His subject is today to the last degree appropriate to all who are trying to achieve a livelihood. Text, I Kings xvii, 6, "And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning and bread and flesh in the evening."

The ornithology of the Bible is a very interesting study. The stork which knoweth her appointed time; the common sparrows teaching the lessons of God's providence; the ostriches of the desert by careless incubation illustrating the recklessness of parents who do not take enough pains with their children; the eagle symbolizing solitude; the bat, a flake of the darkness; the night hawk, the ossifrage, the cuckoo, the lapwing, the osprey, by the command of God in Leviticus, flung out of the world's bill of fare.

I would like to have been with Audubon as he went through the woods, with gun and pencil, bringing down and sketching the fowls of heaven, his unfolded portfolio thrilling all Christendom. What wonderful creatures of God the birds are! Some of them, this morning, like the songs of heaven let loose, bursting through the gates of heaven. Consider their feathers, which are clothing and conveyance at the same time; the nine vertebræ of the neck, the three eyelids to each eye, the third eyelid an extra curtain for graduating the light of the sun. Some of these birds scavengers and some of them orchestra. Thank God for quail's whistle, and lark's carol, and the twitter of the wren, called by the ancients the king of birds, because when the fowls of heaven went into a contest as to who should fly the highest, and the eagle swung nearest the sun, a wren on the back of the eagle, after the eagle was exhausted, sprang up much higher, and so was called by the ancients the king of birds. Consider those of them that have golden crowns and crests showing them to be feather imperials. And listen to the humming bird's serenade in the ear of the honeysuckle. Look at the belted kingfisher, striking like a dart from sky to water. Listen to the voice of the owl, giving the keynote to all croakers. And behold the condor among the Andes, battling with the reindeer. I do not know whether an aquarium or aviary is the best altar from which to worship God.

Elijah and the Ravens.

There is an incident in my text that baffles all the ornithological wonders of the world. The grain crop had been cut off. Famine was in the land. In a cave by the brook Cherith sat a minister of God, Elijah, waiting for something to eat. Why did he not go to the neighbors? There were no neighbors; it was a wilderness. Why did he not pick some of the berries? There were none. If there had been, they would have been dried up. Seated one morning at the mouth of his cave, the prophet sees a flock of birds approaching. Oh, if they were only partridges, or if he only had an arrow with which to bring them down! But as they come nearer, he finds that they are not comestible, but unclean, and the eating of them would be spiritual death. The strength of their beak, the length of their wings, the blackness of their color, their loud, harsh "cruck, cruck," prove them to be ravens.

They whir around about the prophet's head, and then they come on fluttering wing and pause on the level of his lips, and one of the ravens brings bread, and another raven brings meat, and after they have discharged their tiny cargo they wheel past, and other come, until after awhile the prophet has enough, and these black servants of the wilderness table are gone. For six months, and some say a whole year, morning and evening, a breakfast and supper bell sounded as these ravens rang out on the air their "cruck cruck!" Guess where they got the food from. The old rabbins say they got it from the kitchen of King Ahab. Others say that the ravens got their food from pious Obadiah, who was in the habit of feeding the persecuted. Some say that the ravens brought the food to their young in the trees, and that Elijah had only to climb up and get it. Some say that the whole story is improbable, for these were carnivorous birds, and the food they carried was the torn flesh of living beasts, and therefore ceremonially unclean, or it was carrion, and would have been unfit for the prophet. Some say they were not ravens at all but that the word translated "ravens" in my text ought to have been translated "Arabs." So it would have read, "The Arabs brought bread and flesh in the morning and bread and flesh in the evening." Anything but admit the Bible to be true.

The Battle for Bread.

Hew away at this miracle until all the miracle is gone. Go on with the depleting process, but know, my brother, that you are robbing only one man—and that is yourself—of one of the most comforting, beautiful, pathetic and triumphant lessons in all the ages. I can tell you who these purveyors were. They were ravens. I can tell you who freighted them with provisions—God. I can tell you who launched them —God. I can tell you who taught them which way to fly—God. I can tell you who told them at what cave to swoop—God. I can tell you who introduced raven to prophet and prophet to raven—God. There is one passage I will whisper in your ear, for I would not want to utter it aloud, lest some one should drop down under its power, "If any man shall take away from the words of the prophecy of this book, God shall take away his part out of the book of life and out of the Holy City."

While, then, we watch the ravens feeding Elijah, let the swift dove of God's spirit sweep down the sky with divine food, and on outspread wing pause at the lip of every soul hungering for comfort.

On the banks of what rivers have been the great battles of the world? While you are looking over the map of the world to answer that I will tell you that the great conflict of to-day is on the Potomac, on the Hudson, on the Mississippi, on the Thames, on the Savannah, on the Rhine, on the Nile, on the Ganges, on the Hoang-Ho. It is a battle that has been going on for 6,000 years. The troops engaged in it are 1,600,000,000, and those who have fallen by the way are vaster in number than those who march. It is a battle for bread.

Sentimentalists sit in a cushioned chair, in their pictured study, with their slippered feet on a damask ottoman, and say that this world is a great scene of avarice and greed. It does not seem so to me. If it were not for the absolute necessities of the case, nine-tenth of the stores, factories, shops and banking houses of the land would be closed to-morrow. Who is that man delving in the Colorado hills, or toiling in a New England factory, or going through a roll of bills in the bank, or measuring a fabric on the counter? He is a champion sent forth in behalf of some home circle that has to be cared for, in behalf of some church of God that has to be supported, in behalf of some asylum of mercy that has to be sustained. Who is that woman bending over the sewing machine, or carrying the bundle or sweeping the room, or mending the garment, or sweltering at the washtub? That is Deborah, one of the Lord's heroines, battling against Amalekitish want which comes down with iron chariot to crush her and hers. The great question with the vast majority of people to-day is not "home rule," but whether there shall be any home to rule; not one of tariff, but whether there shall be anything to tax. The great questions with the vast majority of people are: "How shall I support my family? How shall I meet my notes? How shall I pay my rent? How shall I give food, clothing and education to those who are dependent upon me?" Oh, if God would help me to-day to assist you in the solution of that problem, the happiest man in this house would be your preacher! I have gone out on a cold morning with expert sportsmen to hunt for pigeons. I have gone out on the meadows to hunt for pigeons. I have gone out on the meadows to hunt for quail. I have gone out on the marsh to hunt for reed birds; but to-day I am out for ravens.

Notice, in the first place in the story of my text, that these winged caterers came to Elijah direct from God.

"I have commanded the ravens that they feed thee" we find God saying in an adjoining passage. They did not come out of some other cave. They did not just happen to alight there. God freighted them, God launched them and God told them by what cave to swoop. That is the same God that is going to supply you. He is your Father. You would have to make an elaborate calculation before you could tell me how many pounds of food and how many yards of clothing would be necessary for you and your family. But God knows without any calculation. You have a plate at his table, and you are going to be waited on, unless you act like a naughty child and kick and scramble and pound saucily the plate and try to upset things.

God the All-Wise Parent.

God has a vast family and everything is methodized, and you are going to be served if you will only wait your turn. God has already ordered all the suits of clothes you will ever need down to the last suit in which you will be laid out. God has already ordered all the food you will ever eat down to the last crumb that will be put in your mouth in the dying sacrament. It may not be just the kind of food or apparel we would prefer. The sensible parent depends on his own judgment as to what ought to be the apparel and the food of the minor in the family. The child would say, "Give me sugars and confections." "Oh, no," says the parent. "You must have something plainer first." The child would say, "Oh, give me these great blotches of color in the garment." "No," says the parent. "That wouldn't be suitable."

Now, God is our Father and we are minors, and he is going to clothe us and feed us, although he may not always yield to our infantile wish for the sweets and glitter. Those ravens of the text did not bring pomegranates from the glittering platter of King Ahab. They brought bread and meat. God had all the heavens and earth before him and under him, and yet he sends this plain food because it was best for Elijah to have it. Oh, be strong, my hearer, in the fact that the same God is going to supply you! It is never "hard times" with him. His ships never break on the rocks. His banks never fail. He has the supply for you, and he has the means for sending it. He has not only the cargo, but the ship. If it were necessary, he would swing out from the heavens a flock of ravens reaching from his gate to yours, until the food would be flung down the sky from beak to beak and from talon to talon.

Notice again in this story of the text that the ravens did not allow Elijah to hoard up a surplus. They did not bring enough on Monday to last all the week. They did not bring enough one morning to last until the next morning. They came twice a day and brought just enough for one time. You know as well as I that the great fret of the world is that we want a surplus; we want the ravens to bring enough for 50 years. You have more confidence in the Washington banks or Bank of England that you have in the royal bank of heaven. You say: "All that is very poetic, but you may have the black ravens. Give me the gold eagles." We had better be content with just enough. If in the morning your family eats up all the food there is in the house, do not sit down and cry and say, "I don't know where the next meal is to come from." About 5 or 6 or 7 o'clock in the morning just look up and you will see two black spots on the sky and you will hear the flapping of wings, and instead of Edgar A. Poe's insane raven alighting on the chamber door, "only this and nothing more," you will find Elijah's two ravens, or two ravens of the Lord, the one bringing bread and the other bringing meat—plumed butcher and baker.

Prayer That Brought Water.

God is infinite in resource. When the city of Rochelle was besieged and the inhabitants were dying of the famine, the tides washed up on the beach as never before, and as never since, enough shellfish to feed the whole city. God is good. There is no mistake about that. History tells us that in 1555 in England there was a great drought. The crops failed, but in Essex, on the rocks, in a place where they had neither sown nor cultured, a great crop of peas grew until they filled a hundred measures, and there were blossoming vines enough, promising as much more.

But why go so far? I can give you a family incident. Some generations back there was a great drought in Connecticut, New England. The water disappeared from the hills, and the farmers living on the hills drove their cattle down toward the valleys, and had them supplied at the wells and fountains of the neighbors. But these after awhile began to fail, and the neighbors said to Mr. Birdseye, of whom I shall speak: "You must not send your flocks and herds down here any more. Our wells are giving out." Mr. Birdseye, the old Christian man, gathered his family at the altar and with his family he gathered the slaves of the household—for bondage was then in vogue in Connecticut—and on their knees before God they cried for water, and the family story is, that there was weeping and great sobbing at that altar that the family might not perish for lack of water and that the herds and flocks might not perish.

The family rose from the altar. Mr. Birdseye, the old man, took his staff and walked over the hills, and in a place where he had been scores of times without noticing anything particular he saw the ground was very dark, and he took his staff and turned up the ground, and water started, and he beckoned to his servants, and they came and brought pails and buckets until all the family and all the flocks and the herds were cared for, and then they made troughs reaching from that place down to the house and barn, and the water flowed, and it is a living fountain to-day.

Now I call that old grandfather Elijah, and I call that brook that began to roll then, and is rolling still, the brook Cherith and the lesson to me and to all who hear it is when you are in great stress of circumstances. Pray and dig, dig and pray, and pray and dig. How does that passage go? "The mountains shall depart and the hills be removed, but my loving kindness shall not fail." If your merchandise, if your mechanism, if your husbandry, fail, look out for ravens. If you have in your despondency put God on trial and condemned him as guilty of cruelty, I move to-day for a new trial. If the biography of your life is ever written, I will tell you what the first chapter, and the middle chapter, and the last chapter will be about if it is written accurately; the first chapter about mercy, the middle chapter about mercy, the last chapter about mercy. The mercy that hovered over your cradle. The mercy that will hover over your grave. The mercy that will cover all between.

God's Unexpected Agents.

Again, this story of the text impresses me that relief came to this prophet with the most unexpected and with seemingly impossible conveyance. If it had been a robin redbreast, or a musical meadow lark, or a meek turtledove, or a sublime albatross that had brought the food to Elijah, it would not have been so surprising. But, no. It was a bird so fierce and inauspicate that we have fashioned one of our most forceful and repulsive words out of it—ravenous. That bird has a passion for picking out the eyes of men and of animals. It loves to maul the sick and the dying. It swallows with vulturous guzzle everything it can put its beak on, and yet all the food Elijah gets for six months or a year is from ravens. So your supply is going to come from an unexpected source.

You think some great hearted, generous man will come along and give you his name on the back of your note, or he will go security for you in some great enterprise. No, he will not. God will open the heart of some Shylock toward you. Your relief will come from the most unexpected quarter. The providence which semed ominous will be to you more than that which seemed auspicious. It will not be a chaffinch with breast and wing dashed with white and brown and chestnut; it will be a black raven.

Here is where we all make our mistake, and that is in regard to the color of God's providence. A white providence comes to us and we say, "Oh, that is mercy!" Then a black providence comes toward us, and we say, "Oh, that is disaster!" The white providence comes to you, and you have great business success, and you have $100,000, and you get proud, and you get independent of God, and you begin to feel that prayer, "Give me this day my daily bread," is inappropriate for you, for you have made provision for 100 years. Then a black providence comes, and it sweeps everything away, and then you begin to pray, and you begin to feel your dependence, and begin to be humble before God, and you cry out for treasures in heaven. The black providence brought you salvation. The white providence brought you ruin. That which seemed to be harsh and fierce and dissonant was your greatest mercy. It was a raven. There was a child born in your house. All your friends congratulated you. The other children of the family stood amazed looking at the newcomer and asked a great many questions, genealogical and chronological. You said—and you said truthfully—that a white angel flew through the room and left the little one there. That little one stood with its two feet in the very sanctuary of your affection, and with its two hands it took hold of the altar of your soul. But one day there came one of the three scourges of children—scarlet fever, or croup, or diphtheria—and all that bright scene vanished. The chattering, the strange questions, the pulling at the dresses as you crossed the floor—all ceased.

The Black Providences.

As the great friend of children stooped down and leaned toward that cradle and took the little one in his arms and walked away with it into the bower of eternal summer, your eye began to follow him, and you followed the treasure he carried, and you have been following them ever since, and instead of thinking of heaven only once a week, as formerly, you are thinking of it all the time, and you are more pure and tender hearted than you used to be, and you are patiently waiting for the daybreak. It is not self righteousness in you to acknowledge that you are a better man than you used to be, you are a better woman than you used to be. What was it that brought you the sanctifying blessing? Oh, it was the dark shadow on the nursery; it was the dark shadow on the short grave; it was the dark shadow on your broken heart; it was the brooding of a great black trouble; it was a raven; it was a raven. Dear Lord, teach this people that white providences do not always mean advancement, and that black providences do not always mean retrogression.

Children of God, get up out of your despondency. The Lord never had so many ravens as he has to-day. Fling your fret and worry to the winds. Sometimes under the vexations of life you feel like my little girl of 4 years, who said under some childish vexation, "Oh, I wish I could go to heaven and see God and pick flowers!" He will let you go when the right time comes to pick flowers. Until then, whatever you want, pray for. I suppose Elijah prayed pretty much all the time. Tremendous work behind him. Tremendous work before him. God has no spare ravens for idlers or for people who are prayerless. I put it in the boldest shape possible, and I am willing to risk my eternity on it. Ask God in the right way for what you want and you shall have it if it is best for you.

Mrs. Jane Pithey of Chicago, a well known Christian woman, was left by her husband a widow with one half dollar and a cottage. She was palsied and had a mother 90 years of age to support. The widowed soul every day asked God for all that was needed in the household and the servant even was astonished at the precision with which God answered the prayers of that woman, item by item, item by item. One day, rising from the family altar, the servant said, "You have not asked for coal, and the coal is out."

Then they stood and prayed for the coal. One hour after that the servant threw open the door and said, "The coal has come." A generous man, whose name I should give you, had sent—as never before and never since—a supply of coal. You cannot understand it. I do. Ravens! Ravens!

The Coming of the Ravens.

My friend, you have a right to argue from precedent that God is going to take care of you. Has he not done it two or there times every day? That is most marvellous. I look back and wonder that God has give me food three times a day regularly all my lifetime, never missing but once, and then I was lost in the mountains, but that very morning and that very night I met the ravens.

Oh, the Lord is so good that I wish all his people would trust him with the two lives—the life you are now living and that which every tick of the watch and every stroke of the clock inform you is approaching. Bread for your immortal soul comes to-day. See! They alight on the platform. They alight on the backs of all the pews. They swing among the arches. Ravens! Ravens! "Blessed are they that hunger after righteousness, for they shall be filled." To all the sinning, and the sorrowing, and the tempted, deliverance comes this hour. Look down and you see nothing but your spiritual deformities. Look back, and you see nothing but wasted opportunity. Cast your eye forward, and you have a fearful looking for judgment and fiery indignation which shall devour the adversary. But look up, and you behold the whipped shoulders of an interceding Christ, and the face of a pardoning God, and the irradiation of an opening heaven. I hear the whir of their wings. Do you not feel the rush of air on your cheek? Ravens! Ravens!

There is only one question I want to ask: How many of this audience are willing to trust God for the supply of their bodies, and trust the Lord Jesus Christ for the redemption of their immortal souls? Amid the clatter of the hoofs and the clang of the wheels of the judgment chariot, the whole matter will be demonstrated.

In advanced stages of Consumption, Scott's Emulsion soothes the cough, checks the night sweats and prevents extreme emaciation. In this way it prolongs life and makes more comfortable the last days. In every case of consumption—from its first appearance to its most advanced stages—no remedy promises a greater hope for recovery or brings comfort and relief equal to Scott's Emulsion. Peasant Theaters in the Tyrol.

Last summer Colonel E. Waring, jr., commissioner of street cleaning in New York made a bicycle tour through the Tyrol. His second paper describing his experiences appears in The Century under the title of "Bicycling Through the Dolomites." Colonel Waring says: All the world has heard of and much of the world has visited the patriotic passion play at Obermmeargau, but few know the degree to which the dramatic faculty is developed among the Tyrolese. At Brixlegg, in the lower Innthal, I saw some years ago a very impressive passion play performed by the people of the village, which was said to be much what the Oberammergau play was before Bayard Taylor made it known to the world and started it on its course of financial prosperity. This year we made a fine run to Brixlegg, to see, in the same barnlike playhouse, a performance of "Speckbacher," representing incidents of Hofer's patriotic campaigns against the Bavarians and the French. The title role was taken by a young man who looks much like Defregger's portrait of the hero. He was a stick and the Hofer was rather ponderous, but the minor parts were capitally given, and the young woman who played the peasant heroine gave great pathos and interest to the play.

In Pradl, an outlying ward of Innsbruck, there is a noted peasant theater where local plays, with a high development of the patriotic element, delight the popular audience on Sunday afternoons and give much satisfaction to the visitors who attend them during the summer. One of the most successful of the dramas was written by the wife of a shoemaker in Pradl, who plays the leading part with great acceptance. In Meran in the autumn months, in a fine open-air theater, the play of "Andreas Hofer" is said to be unusually fine. Hofer was a native of the Passeierthal, which debouches at Meran. The costumes of his time still prevail there, and its traditions still live, so that this play is said to be marked with great historic setting.

Pigs Along Shore.

Pigs like fish, and pigs raised along shore owned by fishermen get plenty of fish to eat. Sometimes fish is fed to the pigs to clear them of scurvy. Horseshoe crabs are often fed to pigs, the crabs being cut clear of the shells so that the pigs can get at them easily. The pigs like horseshoes.

Often around salt water creeks minnows are caught and dumped into pigpens by the bushel. Many fish have hard, sharp, projecting spines that might stick in the pig's throat. When fish of this sort are fed, the spines are first cut off, and only the bodies and tails fed. One of the names of the American sole is hog choker.

Other food is fed along with fish, and fish is never fed to the pigs before killing time; it would make the pork taste fishy. Pigs will eat soft clams. Down the bay of Fundy way pigs go out at low tide and root for mussels. There, where the tide rises 40 or 50 feet and comes in with great suddenness, it is necessary for the pigs to be on the alert, and they are. They hear the first sound of the coming tide wave and turn and scamper for the shore, and even then they get there none too soon occasionally.—New York Sun.

Some doctors are like owls. They look wise and talk wise but they don't think. In diagnosing disease they don't go back to the starting point. When a man gets sick, nine times out of ten his evident sickness is only a symptom of some hidden and long-neglected disorder. Most frequently the original and exciting trouble is a disordered digestion. If that is corrected nature will in the majority of cases do the rest. [illegible] easy for a man to avoid sickness if he will keep a watchful eye on his digestion and resort to the right remedy the moment he feels himself out of sorts.

All disorders of the digestion are corrected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores lost appetite, invigorates the liver, and fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build healthy flesh and firm muscles. It is the great blood maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures wasting diseases and nervous troubles. It wards off disease of every description. Buy "Golden Medical Discovery" of reliable dealers; with tricky ones, something else that pays them better will probably be offered as "just as good." Perhaps it is for them; but it can't be for you.

"My wife has found great help from Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, as when she takes cold from any cause it generally settles on her lungs," writes E. James of Box 20, Brooklyn, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio. "The 'Favorite Prescription' we keep on hand all the time. It is a wonderful medicine. My wife has great faith in it. By being careful in the way we live and by using Dr. Pierce's medicines when we don't feel just right, we have had to call in a doctor but once in fifteen years."

A man can't either make money or enjoy life who suffers from headaches, and sleeplessness, and heart-burn. These troubles are caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, safe, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Dishonest druggists sometimes try to substitute inferior articles for the sake of profit.

Couldn't be Found.

In a country court room the other day a very amusing incident occurred. There had been quite a little chattering among the spectators, causing the judge to exclaim:—

"Let us have decorum, in the court."

An officer, a real native of the Emerald Isle, rushed at once to the door, calling out:—

"Richard Orum! Richard Orum!"

It goes without saying that "decorum" was still wanting for a brief period in that court.

GREECE SENDS A NOTE TO THE POWERS.

Autonomy Promised for Crete—The Turks Are Not Idle—Preparations for a Vigorous War.

Athens, May 10.—It is understood that Greece agrees to confide her interests to the powers in the peace negotiations.

A despatch from Domokos, dated today, says the Turkish advance posts have reached Skirmetzi, and Turks are moving forward in considerable force from Charsalos on the Domokos-Almyros line with a view of cutting off General Smolenski. According to the despatch it is reported at Domokos that the Turks have already come into contact with General Smolenski's brigade.

The correspondent of the Associated Press says the position at Domokos is unchanged. Col. Vassos and his party have started for Epirus. Some mystery attaches to the circumstances under which he left Crete. The commander of an Italian torpedo boat reported to Admiral Canevaro that he had seen Col. Vassos and four companions in a boat off the Island of Cerigo.

The Government has addressed a request to the powers to allow their Admirals in Cretan waters to permit the Greek warships to embark the troops that have been recalled. The Government explains the recall as due to the urgent need of men for the defence of Thessaly.

The latest news from the front is that General Smolenski is now with the Greek forces at Persepla, where he is expecting a fresh attack. M. Skouloudis, the Greek Minister of Foreign Affairs, said in an interview to-day that he expects many difficulties will be encountered in the peace negotiations.

The report that the Crown Princess is going to Berlin is not confirmed.

4.30 p. m.—It is stated that the Government has drafted a note to the powers requesting mediation.

NOTE OF THE POWERS.

The conditions insisted upon by Germany, the chief of which is that Greece shall give her formal consent to the principle of autonomy for Crete, will be accepted by the Greek Government. The note of the powers has not yet been presented, but it has been drawn and is to the following effect: "Upon a formal declaration by Greece that she will recall her troops and agree to such an autonomous regime for Crete as the powers in their wisdom shall deem best, and accept unreservedly the counsels of the powers, they will intervene in the interests of peace." The note will probably be presented to-morrow after the German Minister has received final instructions. It is understood that Greece, in her reply, will assent to all these conditions. M. Ralli, the Premier, and M. Skouloudis, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, have had a long interview to-day with Mr. Egerton, the British representative, which has caused considerable comment. It is believed to be connected with the expected intervention of the powers. A despatch from Domokos says that heavy rains there prevent fighting.

The recall of the forces from Crete has been received with resignation by the public. The Delyannis organs attack the Government bitterly for appealing to Europe, but most of the papers accept this as inevitable, and violently attack the Ethnike Hetairia, asking it to render an account of its actions. On learning that the Crown Prince had appointed his dismissed chief of staff Col. Sapoundzaki, and his aide-de-camp, Capt. Hadjipetro, to the command of an artillery regiment, the Government has recalled both officers to Athens and ordered them to return immediately.

Life Was a Burden.

Four Years of Agony and Misery.

A Marvellous Cure by Paine's Celery Compound.

Three Bottles Suffice to Make Mr Finter Well and Strong.

The hopeless, despairing, and all who imagine they are lost, because the doctors have failed, should rejoice to know that Paine's Celery Compound fully meets the worst cases, and never fails to restore lost health.

It is no vain or idle boast when the declaration is made that Paine's Celery Compound cures when all other means fail. To-day a grand army of men and women in our own Canada can vouch for the truth of the statement made.

As a proof that Paine's Celery Compound cures in the darkest times of disease and misery we give the testimony of Mr. F. Finter, of Ottawa, Ont., who was saved at almost the eleventh hour. He says:

"I consider it a duty to acknowledge the great good that I derived from your valuable remedy, Paine's Celery Compound. For four years I endured terrible agony and misery owing to pains in my head and chest. Life was a burden to me, and no living mortal could describe my sufferings. I was treated by doctors, and used many patent medicines, but nothing gave me relief until I used your Paine's Celery Compound. I thank God for the day it was brought to my notice in the Ottawa papers. I have taken three bottles of medicine, and to-day I can truly say that I feel like a new man. I feel certain that if the suffering people of Canada would only try Paine's Celery Compound they would be cured. I will recommend the remedy whenever I have the opportunity, as it is the best ever given to sufferers."

STEAMER ON FIRE.

SIXTEEN BURNED OR SMOTHERED BETWEEN DECKS.

The Warning Came Too Late—Cowardly Stokers Attempt to Seize a Boat—Captain and Crew Driven Back by the Flames—A Passenger's Story of the Fire.

New York, May 10.—The Mallory Line steamer Leona, which left her pier on Saturday, bound for Galveston, put back, and arrived in port yesterday, sixteen persons having perished. The dead were steerage passengers on the steamer who succumbed in a terrible struggle during a fire which occurred off the Delaware capes at an early hour yesterday morning.

The horror of the story can hardly be detailed. Those who are dead were penned up below decks, and although frantic efforts were made by the officers to save them, the fire had such terrific headway before the danger was discovered that all escape was cut off.

The steamer carried amongst her cargo many bales of cotton. It is not certain how the fire originated, but when it was discovered it burst forth with such fury that it was impossible to reach the steerage, even when the steerage passengers apparently were unmindful of the danger or else the smoke and flames had not reached them. The saloon passengers were first aroused and in such a manner as to occasion little alarm. When it became apparent that the fire had cut off the steerage passengers, the captain and his men poured great quantities of water down the ventilator and eight of the steerage passengers finally succeeded in making their escape.

A TALE OF HORROR.

Among the passengers were S. V. Winslow, of Rutherford, N. J. On his return to this city late last night Mr. Winslow told the following graphic story of the fire "We left the pier at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with clear skies and beautiful weather. Sandy Hook was passed and the lights of the Jersey shore were still visible when we went to bed. By the time we passed Barnegat Light, at 10 o'clock, all the passengers were in bed. The passengers in the steerage had also retired to their bunks.

"First Mate Wallace was pacing the bridge about 2 a.m., when he thought he smelled smoke coming from the forecastle. He went down forward to the companionway and opened the door of the steerage. There was a burst of flame which burnt his face. Wallace ran on deck and gave the alarm of fire to the forward watch, telling them to awake the steward and have all passengers awakened as quickly as possible, without creating any excitement. The steward did this in a quiet manner, going to each stateroom and waking the occupants. He said in calm tones there was a slight fire in the forward part of the ship and it might be advisable for the passengers to get their things together. It might be possible, he added, that the ship would eventually have to be abandoned.

"There was no excitement among the saloon passengers. Most of them packed their luggage and carried it from their stateroom into the main saloon. The steward made frequent trips forward and came back with the reports of the progress of the flames. He said that the fire was confined below decks, and as the flames did not rise very high the passengers did not fully realize the extent of their peril.

IN A FIERY FURNACE.

"Captain Wilder rushed on deck at the first alarm, clad only in an undershirt and trousers. He assumed command, and at once ordered the crew to rescue the steerage passengers. On the same deck with the steerage, on the port side of the ship, a large quantity of cotton bagging was stored, separated from the steerage passengers by a board partition. The main deck was almost completely filled with freight, cutting off all exit from the steerage to the after-part of the ship.

"The only way out from the steerage was up the forward companionway. The crew, on the captain's orders, rushed for the companionway and tried to descend. They were driven back by dense volumes of smoke and flames quickly followed. The smoke and flames also came up through the ventilators and it was apparent to all who were on deck that below decks was a roaring furnace.

"Then it dawned on the officers and crew that the unfortunates in the steerage were probably burning to death. Captain Wilder saw his crew driven back from the companionway and the realization of the horror below made him desperate. He rushed to the stairs and boldly attempted to go below. He did not get down more than half a dozen steps when the increasing clouds of smoke and flames shooting up around him drove him back on deck.

"Only a slight wind was blowing, from the southward, that carried the volume of smoke aft over the full length of the ship and enveloped her in a shroud of choking black smoke, until the captain gave orders to change the course completely, so that the smoke would be blown over the bow. The speed of the ship was first slackened, then the order was given to keep her up bare steerage way. I stood in the lee of the pilot house watching the officers and crew making futile efforts to reach the steerage. The horror of the situation was at first paralyzing. It seemed as though the men and women whom I had seen go into steerage the day before were being cremated beneath my feet.

"The deck was getting blistering hot. The flames were creeping higher and higher, through ever outlet from beneath the deck. The pouring of water down the companionway and through the ventilators had no effect save to drive up the smoke in great puffs and cause angry spurts of fire to dart menacingly into the faces of the men.

"During the excitement of the first half hour we did not know that anyone had gotten out of the steerage alive, but later we found in the cabin eight of them who had managed to get out. Their bunks had been nearest to the companionway and they had been awakened by part of the crew rushing out of the forecastle. Being so near the stairs they had climbed out even before the first officer had rushed down on the first smell of smoke above decks. Among those saved were an old man, his wife and two sons, a young Englishman and two other young men bound for Los Angeles.

Good fishing is reported in Lake St. Clair and Mitchell Bay.

THE LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Toronto, May 11.—The receipts at these yards this morning did not exceed 50 loads, but 37 loads came in yesterday, and most of it was on the market today. The receipts included 1,800 hogs, 150 sheep and lambs, 130 calves, and a few milkers.

The export trade was dull, as there is a large accumulation of cattle both here and at Montreal, especially the latter place, waiting for boats, and until the accumulation is out of the way buying will be slow. Prices are unchanged at from 3½ to 4½c per pound for loads, though for other choice selections 4½c, and once or twice 4¾c was paid, but it has to be medium or good cattle to go over 4½c.

Sheep are easy at from 3 to 3½c per pound for the best (off cars). Thick fat and light hogs are selling from 4¾ to 5c per pound, sows at 3c, and stags at 2c per pound.

UNITED STATES MARKETS.

East Buffalo, May 11.—The supply continues to be light, and barely enough was doing to establish quotations but the few steers on sale sold at about steady former prices, and with steady prices at the West the outlook is considered fair for the week's trade at present prices. Veals and calves—Receipts, 250 head, including a deck-load from Canada; and the market was slow, and full ½c lower. Common to fair, $3.50 to $4; good to extra choice veals, $4 to $4.25; prime to extra veals, $4.50 to $4.75; heavy fed and buttermilk calves, $2.50 to $3.50. Hogs—Receipts, 50 cars, fairly active demand, but a shade to a nickel lower. Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 25 cars of fresh arrivals and 10 loads held over.

Interesting Business Facts.

H. A. Lozier & Co. are preparing to make additional improvements in their already enormous business, and incidentally intend making some very radical changes. Six complete factories are now embraced in the coterie of plants operated by H. A. Lozier & Co. The following statement of facts will be found interesting:

	Floorage, square feet.	Acreage.
Toronto, Ont., works........	87 373	1.35
Toledo, Ohio, works........	193 814	4.44
Westfield, Mass., works.....	156,737	3.59
Thompsonville, Conn., works.	58,937	1.35
Ellwood, Pa., tube works....	130,797	3.05
Greenville, Pa., tube works....	130,797	3.00

During the ensuing year the capacity will be enhanced about 25 per cent., as they intend to enlarge the Massachusetts plant to such a capacity that it will employ about 2,000 men. The Toronto plant, which is the finest bicycle works in all Canada, is complete in every detail. It employs about 500 hands, and the output is 125 finished wheels each day.

If all the plants were put together they would cover a twenty-acre field. About 4,200 men are employed in these works, supporting a population of 20,000 people. Directly and indirectly it is estimated that between 50,000 and 75,000 people receive their maintenance from this company.

The present capacity of these combined plants is about 450 bicycles each day, and this will run up fully 600 per day when the improvements and additions contemplated are carried into effect.

The distinction of introducing the present process of drawing cold steel tubing in America belongs to this firm, and the output of their tube mills at Ellwood City, Pa., and Greenville, Pa., is now double that of any other firm in the world.

The manner in which they have been extending their foreign trade is something phenomenal At the present time the three great European distributing points are London, Paris, and Hamburg. There is a general agent at Lwolle, Holland, and 32 sub-agencies. A general agent at Copenhagen, Denmark; a general agent at Geneva, Switzerland; and 14 agencies and 58 sub-agencies working under the direction of the Hamburg agency. A general agent at Moscow, Russia, with 17 sub-agencies; general agent in Austria, with 21 sub-agencies; as well as agencies in Egypt, India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Mexico, Central and South American States, Sandwich Islands, Helsingfors, Finland, Christiania, Sweden, Brussels Antwerp, Ghent, and Liege, Belgium. Two stores in Paris, agencies at Lyons, Marseilles, Roubaix, Bordeaux, and Boulogne, France; also sub-agencies in Calais, and 17 other French cities.

There is perhaps no other bicycle concern in the world that has laid plans better for securing export trade, and this season has witnessed a wonderful revival in this line.

Bessie Jennings' Death.

From the Tweed News we learn the following additional particulars of the death of little Bessie Jennings, who was found hanging to a tree on the Moscow road on Wednesday of last week: "The body was discovered by Mrs. Jennings herself, about four o'clock in the afternoon, who was almost prostrated by the sight. Its position indicated one of two possibilities—that of suicide or the action of some malevolent fiend, who it was at first supposed had outraged or attempted to outrage the child and then murdered her to cover up his crime. The little body on inspection bore no trace of violence. But a solution was at hand. Beneath the tree was a box with which the child had been playing. In the early infancy of her adopted darling, Mrs. Jennings, when busy with her household cares, had frequently tied the little one up in her apron. This the child had never forgotten, and frequently of late had questioned Mrs. Jennings as to her reasons for so doing. The lady explained to her charge that it was for the purpose of preventing her from being injured by the stove in case she should fall asleep. It is presumed that the child got tired of play and reasoning that the methods which were adopted to prevent her from falling on the stove would prove equally efficacious in preventing her from falling off the box when she went to sleep, she tied her apron string around her neck and attached it to the limb of the tree. Dreaming, probably, that she was still engaged in some childish pursuit, she rolled off the box and was strangled. No other explanation seems possible, and while all deplore the untoward occurrence, it is well that any suspicion of foul play should be set aside at once.

A Thieving Coon.

On Friday morning last Albert Coon called at the residence of Mr. Allum, who resides about seven miles from Marysville, Wolfe Island, and represented himself as being in search of work. He was engaged for a period of six months, and during the day Mr. Allum had reasons for the belief that he had secured an assistant who would be of great help to him during the spring and harvest. On Saturday morning Coon stated to his employer that his trunk containing his wearing apparel, etc., was at the Queen's hotel in Kingston, and asked if he might take half a day off to secure it and take it to the island. Mr. Allum gave him leave to take a horse and buggy to drive to Marysville, thence to cross to the city by the ferry boat, leaving the horse and rig at the village, take the trunk across, and drive back with it to the farm. Coon, however, took the horse and buggy across with him and drove to Kingston. Arriving there he at once struck out for Napanee. He was questioned several times as to his having the rig, but gave plausible reasons, and was allowed to proceed. Meanwhile Allum had become suspicious and the police authorities in the neighboring towns were communicated with. Coon arrived in Napanee Saturday evening, putting up at the Campbell House. He had traded horses somewhere on his route, evidently getting a few dollars to boot, and with this money he decamped, as he has not been seen since. Mr. Allum came to Napanee Monday morning, to identify the buggy, and to endeavor to trace and recover his horse. Coon it is said did not by any means, dislike penitentiary life, during his term of imprisonment in that institution, and to one of his fellow-convicts, he stated, shortly before his release, that he would soon be back again. He was convicted and served a two years sentence for indecent assault. His story regarding a trunk at the Queen's hotel was entirely without foundation. On arriving in town Coon told Officer Hinch that there had been a murder committed about three miles down the York road, a tramp having cut the throat of a woman. It is supposed that he told this for a blind, as it was soon ascertained that there was nothing in it. The report, however, raised quite an excitement during Sunday.

The Delero Formation in Kaladar.

Mr. W. H. Merrill, of Detroit, was in Toronto yesterday, having arrived from Kaladar in the County of Addington, where he is interested in valuable gold mining properties. To a World man Mr. Merrill said that a year ago valuable discoveries of mispickel gold ore were made on lot 24, con. 5, Kaladar Township. A shaft was sunk and assays made, the last three of which ran $58, $65 and $81, respectively. American capital will be used to develop this valuable property. A few weeks ago it was found by John Guinn, one of the owners of the well-known Guinn mine, that the ore ran into the two adjoining lots and plenty of it. Lots 25 and 26 are valuable, the owner of the latter, Mr. Perry, holding his claim to be worth $50,000. There is even a greater show of ore on lot 25, which is owned by Mr. F. Burrows, P. S. Inspector, Napanee. It is now beyond doubt that the formation is the same as that around Delero. There is any amount of ore on these properties. The three properties are now being opened up. The whole district, Mr. Merrill says, is teeming with miners and prospectors.—Toronto World.

Disease of Children.

The average parent is too apt to consider the milder contagious diseases of childhood simply as inconveniences—of only temporary detriment to their victim. But we must recognize the scientific fact that no disease ever leaves the physical system absolutely unimpaired. To this we must add the fact that with healthy children growth is constant, and that the arresting of that growth by any disease really diminishes to just such a degree as it extends the ultimate size and vigor of the child who suffers from the disease. Contagious diseases, however harmless they may seem, should never be knowingly incurred, for even their least injurious results are unknown quantities, militating against the development of the child, while there is always risk of more serious manifestations, whose evil consequences may extend through the whole life of the child and seriously impair both its usefulness and happiness. Therefore it is only our plain duty to guard against contagious disease as long and as far as may be. This is now possible to an extent never before conceived of. We at present understand, to a degree at least, the nature of contagious diseases, and out of this knowledge we gain power to avoid or to abort the disease.—Harper's Bazar.

Hunting Trophies In the Household.

One of the curious fads of the day is the use of some hunting trophy as an article of household funiture or decoration. Man and woman are both enthusiasts upon this subject. The man's den, studio or library must contain a piece of this kind, the foundation of which was gained in some fall or winter hunting trip, while the feminine boudoir or drawing room also boasts one presented by a masculine admirer. Among the skins figuring most prominently in this way is that of the elephant. Strange as it seems, the hide of this ungainly creature can be and is used in a dozen unique ways. The leg of the elephant forms an odd corner closet. The skin of a "baby" of the species makes an armchair. Another weird chair is covered with the skins of small animals, such as the red fox, otter, etc. The arms and legs of the seat terminate in the heads of these tiny beasts, which are placed where knobs would occur in the everyday article. Bears are greatly in use among those who go in for this fad. One fashionable house owns a stuffed bear arranged as a species of dumb waiter. Hat racks from small legs and feet of deer and kindred creatures are much in evidence.—Buffalo Commercial.

Pleasant Luncheon Drink.

A pleasant drink frequently offered at ladies' luncheons is made from orange juice. Tall glasses are filled one-third full with finely cracked ice, over which orange juice is poured till the liquid is brought to the half measure. A siphon of vichy offered frequently to add to the juice gives a bubble and foam to the drink which completes its relish. Orange juice chilled in ice and salt and served in tall glasses, with a strawberry, slice of banana, a grape cut and seeded, a die of pineapple, or any seasonable treatment with fruit is another agreeable drink to sip through a luncheon in lieu of wine. Women who are careful of their complexions know the harm to them of wine drinking and much prefer fruit juice decoctions. The juice may be chilled sufficiently by putting it in a tin pail and placing that in a pan with a layer of ice and salt to the depth of a couple of inches on the bottom for an hour before luncheon. Watch that the freezing point is not reached, as may happen if there is too much ice and salt to the amount of juice.—New York Post.

SAVED HER DRUNKEN HUSBAND

She Finally Administered a Remedy Without his Knowledge, and Cured Him.

A correspondent writes: I had such a happy home and a noble, big-hearted husband till he took to drinking, first through sociability, then because the fiendish desire would come over him, crazing him for drink.

"I was heart-broken. My happy home was fast becoming one of misery till a friend told me to try a liquor cure called Anti-Booze. I was willing to try anything, so I sent $1.00 as she suggested, to the Oriental Chemical Co., 20 St. Alexis St., Montreal, and by return mail I received in a plain wrapper a little box of pills. I put one of these in his coffee every night and morning without him knowing it, (as they dissolve immediately), and in less than a week, to my delight, he stopped drinking entirely.

"Anti-Booze has changed my drunken husband into a sober, industrious, happy man, and I feel it my duty to tell others about it. They will send full information without charge to any who will write them. "J. D. H." 18cm

Spring Wall Paper....

C. B. SCANTLEBURY

—MAKES AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

Perfection has been reached in the New Wall Papers we are showing this spring.

Our new sample books are now ready. There are really no marked changes in the styles. Whatever your taste fancies, it can be successfully catered to from among the light dainty shades to the darker richer tones in Reds, Blues, Greens, Terra cottas, Tans, Browns, Violets and Umbers, Ochres, Siennas, Greys, Heliotropes, etc., while prices are lower than ever.

If it is at all convenient to visit our warerooms we will place all of our facilities at your disposal, and there are none better in this whole broad Dominion.

The new goods are simply beautiful—the only trouble is, the commonplace name of "Wall Paper" does not begin to convey to your minds, the wealth of design and coloring in these exquisite interior decorations.

If you cannot visit us, please write a postal for samples. Just say what rooms you think of papering, what prices you want to pay, and where you saw the advertisement.

The samples are all done up in book form and in complete sets of Wall Frieze and Ceiling, and are sent to you free of charge either by mail or express.

These samples enable you to make as intelligent a selection as one could wish for. We pay express charges on orders.

A Small Fire

About 1 o'clock on Sunday morning last the alarm sounded and quickly brought out the fire brigade. The residence of Mr. J. N. McCreary, Water street, was found to be on fire. Fortunately it was discovered before any great damage was done. The roof of the kitchen was slightly burned, but the principal damage was by water and smoke. Mr. and Mrs. McCreary were in Camden East at the time, and knew nothing of it till their return. The origin of the fire is a mystery. Loss about $100, fully covered by insurance.

Shorty Heard From.

Word was received last week of the safe arrival at Johannesburg, South Africa, of John F. Walsh and wife and Clarence Trimble, who left here last February. They report a very pleasant trip out. They remained for sight seeing in London, Eng., and several other places en route. Charlie Trimble met them at the station, but did not recognize his brother for some little time. He said he expected to see a little kid in short pants. Clarence started to work the next morning after his arrival in the assaying office with his brother. His many friends here wish him success in his far away home.

Fractured his Leg.

During the football match at Deseronto on Friday last, Mr. Fred Scott, one of the Napanee players, had one of the small bones in his right leg fractured. The accident occurred during the early part of the game and report says it was due as much to the rough playing of the Deseronto players, who were a much heavier team than Napanee, as it was to accident. It appears Scott put out his leg to stop the ball, and one of the Deseronto team jumped on the leg. Fred was taken to the Stewart house, where an examation was made by Dr. Vandervoort, who bandaged the limb temporarily, and he was put in a rig and brought home. Dr. Leonard has had charge of the case, but the limb has been so swollen that he has been unable to set the bone. Fred suffers much from the injury, but takes it quite philosophically, saying that it is one of the little things incident to football. He also says that Mackintosh was only trying to counteract his check, and did not jump on him with the intention of doing physical injury.

A Beautiful Memorial.

The beautiful memorial church of St. Anthony, Yarker, has been further beautified by having a lovely memorial window erected by Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Scovill, of Rat Portage, Ontario, to the memory of Mrs. Scovill's mother, the wife of the Rev. Anthony O'Loughlin, to whose memory the church was erected last year.

The window is composed of three lights. The centre is a representation of "The Good Shepherd" and immediately below the feet are the words "Feed My Lambs." The gospel light is a representation of St. Mary, the mother of our Lord. The epistle light is a representation of St. Faith. The writer never saw more beautiful faces than each figure presents. The coloring is excellent and the whole window represents a work of art at once a credit to the manufacturers (Messrs. Lyon & Son, Toronto.) A beautiful memorial of a loving daughter to a beloved mother, a splendid objective lesson to the worshippers for many years to come, and we hope an incentive to others to follow this laudable example, not only in this church but others in this parish and diocese. The inscription at the base of the window is as follows: "To the glory of God and in loving memory of Rebecca Myles, wife of the Rev. Anthony O'Loughlin."

A Crowded Class

Owing to the large attendance of pupils in Miss Aylsworth's room in the West Ward Academy the Board has decided to permit those in the junior form to attend but one half time daily. They are all little tots and the reduction in time until after the summer vacation will not prove a grievance, and the necessity for engaging an extra teacher will be obviated.

Canadian Foresters' Excursion.

GOOD ROADS.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, Prov. Commissioner, arrived in town Tuesday noon. The afternoon was spent in inspecting the streets and giving advice to members of the council. This is considered by those who accompanied the Commissioner the most valuable part of the visit, as it was in the nature of an object lesson. A public meeting was held in the town hall in the evening.

THE EVENING MEETING.

In opening the meeting the Mayor said: "Though this meeting is not large it is composed of representative men. All the surrounding municipalities are represented. A murder trial is a rare thing in Napanee, and has attracted a large number that otherwise would be here. The desirability of good roads is universally conceeded. They are of mutual benefit to the town and country. The condition of the roads frequently decided which town a farmer would go to with his produce and do his trading. Within the town limits there has been expended, during the last ten years, $30,000, and what are the results? A few blocks of granolithic sidewalks represent the total of permanent work. So far as the roadways are concerned there has been no improvement. Now, the desire to do something better has been the motive in inviting the Provincial Road Commissioner, Mr. A. W. Campbell, here. He has, during the afternoon, with members of the town council, inspected our streets and material, and the valuable information we have received is keenly appreciated." He then introduced Mr. A. W. Campbell, who was listened to for one and a half hours with close attention.

Mr. Campbell in his opening remarks said: "I wish in the outset to correct an idea that is held by some people with regard to the good roads movement. It is not a scheme to do away with existing systems of doing the work by pathmasters and engineers. There is no desire to have skilled and expensive men employed; but to teach the people who now have this work in hand, how to make good roads, and without increasing the present expenditure." He said he had been very favorably impressed with the town, the substantial business blocks, fine public buildings, and residences that were evidences of thrift and prosperity of our citizens. The compactness of the town resulted in a proportionately small amount of streets, and with the abundance of good material, which we have, we should have fine streets, and that without expending more than we have been doing during the past years. "You are doing better work in some respects than some larger places, particularly in the construction of permanent sidewalks. You will need streets and walks as long as the town exists, and permanent work is the most economical. You have a good granolithic walk on the business portion of the town and it did not cost you too much for a walk of that strength. For the residential portion a much lighter walk will do. One constructed without granite finish but simply sand and cement finish can be constructed for 12 cents a square foot, and will give excellent wear. I strongly advise you to discontinue the construction of plank walks. To make a good road some principles must be observed; you cannot neglect any of them and have good results.

First—drain the foundation.
Second—crown the road.
Third—use material that consolidates readily.

It is impossible to bridge over water and mud with stone. The mud comes up between the stones and the frost heaves up the surface which then readily breaks up into ruts. Field tile, graded to proper outlet, should be placed under the gutters, below the frost, to cut off the water from the adjacent land. The crowning should be one inch to the foot from gutter to the centre. This carries storm water to the gutters, which should be properly graded to the outlets. By these means the foundation is kept dry. The dry soil carries the load; the gravel is for the wearing surface. To construct the wearing surface, use a stone crusher, which separates the broken stone into sizes, 2½ inches, 1½ inches and ¾ inches and small scales and stone dust. This is applied, the largest size first, then the next size, and so on, finishing with the scales and stone dust. Thus constructed you will have a road that will wear, and not break up into ruts or be driven into the mud. By using a roller first on the foundation then on the gravel you accelerate the compaction and get a better road.

The stone should be put on twelve inches thick at the centre and five at the curb.

I do not advise hand broken stone, as the irregular sizes will not make the same compact surface.

As to the width of roadways, of course in the business portion it must be from one sidewalk to the other, or 40 feet. In the residential portion of the town 26 feet is full wide. In such parts the moving of the sidewalks outside of the trees is a proper thing. You want the broad street for light, air and æsthetic effect, but you do not need a broad roadway. I notice a disposition on the part of your citizens to beautify their places, but it is poor encouragement to have a ragged, dirty street to destroy their efforts. The dirt should be turned out from the gutter to form a boulevard to the sidewalk, then when the property owner fills in on his side of the walk the street will not look as if you were expecting a flood.

With regard to the Kingston road, and probably others in the county, he said that the bank at the side should be cut down and turned out, and gutters properly graded; by so doing the road could be crowned without adding more material to the centre than was necessary to repair the wear. This could be done at a small expense compared with adding sufficient material to the centre. The Kingston road had been well constructed, but neglected. It had been made flatter than is the modern custom. He expressed surprise that there was no road machinery in this vicinity, some western townships having several graders, two or three roadbeats joining in the purchase. The great thing is to adopt a proper system, then adhere to it strictly. If ever so little is done do it right.

The question of cost is often raised. I saw a piece of road-making on the boundary road between the town and township which is said to have cost $50. It was worse than thrown away; the road was damaged by the work done. If there is money for that sort of thing it should not be wanting for good work. One million days labor and $3,500,000 are annually expended on roads in Ontario. Properly used this would put every road in the province in good condition inside of ten years. Pathmasters have done good work, but they labor under great difficulties. They have not enough labor at their command to accomplish much permanent work in one season, consequently the work is spread out in a little gravel here, a little grading there, and some draining in another place. Three or four beats should join, under a competent man, and concentrate their efforts; make a piece of good road, say at the end nearest the town which they all use, and next year another piece, and so on until it is all properly constructed. This has been done with excellent results."

At the close of his address Mr. Campbell answered several questions, and the remarks of Messrs. Herkimer Aylsworth, Empey, Foster, Miller, Herrington, Dr. Leonard and others, were evidences of deep interest.

Mr. W.S. Herrington moved, seconded by Mr. F. F. Miller, C.E., that the council be asked to take steps to secure the co-operation of the surrounding municipalities in the purchase of road machinery. This motion was carried unanimously. Mr. Symington said we should have Mr. Campbell back again soon.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Campbell, who in response expressed his pleasure with the visit, and especially with the deep interest manifested by the council and representatives from the country.

A Summer Camp Robbed.

Camp Le Nid last summer upon breaking up camp left a large quantity of their equipment in their pavillion built upon Buttan's Point. During the month of March some unscrupulous persons broke into the pavillion and carried away several articles of wearing apparel and cooking utensils. No means will be spared to bring the guilty parties to justice. The camp, through Mr. Herrington, offer a reward for evidence that will lead to the conviction of the thieves.
